OTTO KAHN IN HAYES TANGLE

Name of a New York Banker Used by Mrs. Butler in Operatic Venture

New York, May 17.—In ten seconds Mrs. Myrtle Bowman Hayes today entered a formal plea of not guilty to a charge of forging the name of Charles M. Schwab to a note for $25,000 and hurried out of the Criminal Courts Building to a limousine.

Into the financial maze growing out of the operations of Mrs. Myrtle Bowman Hayes, promoter of the Hotel Chatham in Brookline, there was injected today a new name—Otto H. Kahn, New York capitalist and patron of the arts.

Since Mrs. Hayes was indicted on charges of forging the name of Charles M. Schwab to notes investigators have turned up amazing information pertaining to the operations of this woman and Mrs. Cora Stetson Butler of Cleveland, especially in regard to the "roping" of Charles B. Manville, the asbestos man.

Mrs. Butler has graced the front pages of Cleveland newspapers in a variety of roles, chiefly of her marital differences with her husband.

She posed as a musician, an auto cup racer, a rider of fast horses, a

British Naval Officer Thrown Over on the Eve of Wedding in Washington

Washington, D. C., May 17.—The marriage of Miss Nancy Hoyt, daughter of the late Henry M. Hoyt, solicitor-general under the Taft administration, to Lieutenant F. W. Wiseman-Clarke, R. N., which was to have taken place on Wednesday has been indefinitely postponed.

According to a statement issued by Mrs. Hoyt the plans for the wedding were cancelled because of the sudden and serious illness of her daughter. It is understood, however, that the engagement is broken.

Lieutenant Wiseman-Clarke and his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wiseman Clarke, who arrived last week for the wedding, left for New York and will sail Saturday for England.

Their son accompanied them.

THIEF AND GIRLS FALL TO STREET

Young Woman Tackles Burglar; They Crash Through Second-Story Window

New Bedford, May 17.—Two sisters are dying at New Bedford Hospital from injuries suffered when they fell through a second story window with a burglar.

Luize Carvalho, nineteen, has a broken back.

Her sister, Delphina, has a possible fracture of the skull and internal injuries.

The thief, discovered by the girls as they were about to retire, escaped. The police are combing the neighborhood, beliving that he was injured and so not able to get far.

There was a noise at the window. Then the light in the kitchen flared and a man stood revealed at the girls' bed chamber door.

Luize, hysterical, dashed past the Hotel Open Since 1771 Closed by Prohibition

Sturbridge, May 17.—The Elms Hotel, opened to the public as a hostelry in March, 1771, will close its doors tomorrow.

"Prohibition hit us like it has all small town hotels. The Elms is no longer a paying proposition, so we'll have to shut down," says John Hubbard, owner.

MATE HELD IN LOOTING OF CRAFT

Second Arrest Is Expected in the Probe of Alleged Daring Robbery of Scuttled Vessel

Merchandise valued at several hundred thousand dollars and consigned to the freighter Binghamton, was stolen, a false cargo was taken aboard and the vessel was deliberately sunk on Gannett's Ledge, off Greenland, N. S., according to information in the hands of the police today.

Guy L. Keans, thirty-five, of Middlesex road, Swampscott, first mate of the scuttled ship, was arrested charged with larceny of leather valued at $22,822.

This was part of the cargo arresting officers say was trucked from the pier to New York and a Somerville cache, although reported as lost with the Binghamton.

Another man, who was named with Keans in indictment warrants returned by Suffolk County Grand Jury, is being sought and his arrest is expected in a few hours.

PROBE FIRE IN STATE HOUSE

Blaze in Rubbish Pile Under Basement Stairs Causes but Little Damage

Mrs. Mary Murphy, a scrubwoman, discovered a fire in the State House today. Watchman H. J. Dolan and three other employes held the flames in check with hand grenades until the fire department arrived. A chemical stream settled the flames.

Investigation was made by State Fire Marshal George C. Neal. The fire was in a pile of old vouchers dumped under a basement stairway.

Charred paper was carried by air currents to the fourth floor. These sparks added to danger of the fire spreading.

Mrs. Murphy, who discovered the fire, lives at No. 130 Saratoga street, East Boston. The pile of burning vouchers was two feet high.

It is supposed the fire was caused by a cigar or cigarette butt which landed on the papers.

State Fire Marshal Neal is particularly interested in a report that the vouchers had been under the stairway a month. It is said that an attache of State Comptroller James C. McCormick's office put them there for ultimate removal.

The fire was within twenty feet of the Fire Marshal's office door; also the same distance from the offices of Colonel Alfred F. Foote, State Commissioner of Public Safety, and Chief Inspector John H. Plunkett, who has charge of inspection of buildings for fire prevention.

MYSTERY WOMAN ABANDONS BABY GIRL IN LAWRENCE

Lawrence, May 17.—A two-weeks-old baby girl gurgles and coos at Lawrence General Hospital while police officials strive to find her mother.

A woman giving the name of Mrs. Hatch of Sanborn, N. H., registered with the child at Post Office Chambers. She went out to get something to eat. She has not been seen since.

Three napkins with the initials G. L. worked in a corner are the only identifying marks left by the mystery woman, described as about thirty-eight, with graying hair, black waist with pearl buttons, black skirt and black plush coat.

MOTHER TAKEN FROM JAIL AS STORK ARRIVES

Newark, N. J., May 16.—Mrs. John Creighton, charged with her husband with fatally poisoning her brother, Charles R. Avery, is the mother of a son.

She was removed from jail to a hospital shortly before the child was born.

Experts today, examining the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Creighton, parents of John Creighton, report the aged couple did not die of the organic diseases stated in the death certificates.

An examination for trace of poison will be made.

HAGEN AND SARAZEN WIN MATCHES ON LEEDS LINKS

Leeds, Eng., May 17 (Associated Press).—Walter Hagen of New York, British open golf champion, won his match in the first round of the professional tournament here today, defeating T. Barber of Alderly Edge, at the twenty-third hole.

Gene Sarazen, American open champion, defeated Mark Seymore, of Rochester, England, five up and three to play, but Joe Kirkwood, former Australian champion, was eliminated by H. C. Kinch, of Woodcote, Park, 3 up and 2 to play.

BANDITS 'PAROLE' CAPTIVE TO SEND NEW DEMANDS

Peking, May 17 (By the Associated Press)—The Frenchman V. Barube, among the captives held by the Suchow bandits, has been released on parole and arrived at Tsao-Chuang with further demands from the captors for the removal of the troops. It is expected he will return to the bandit headquarters today in accordance with the promise he made on leaving.

AMUNDSEN GETS READY FOR FLIGHT

Christiania, May 17 (I. N. S.)—Captain Roald Amundsen, Arctic explorer, who will attempt to fly over the North Pole basin by airplane, has left his Winter headquarters at Wainwright, Alaska, according to a report today by the Norwegian Yachting Association, the organization making arrangements for the flight. Naval transports will patrol the seas north of Spitzbergen, while hydro-aeroplanes will patrol the air. Amundsen is expected to begin his flight next month.

MUSSOLINI PLANS STRONG MAJORITY

Rome, May 17 (I. N. S.)—Premier Mussolini is engaged upon drastic electoral reforms to include the entire territory of Rome into a single constituency. Each elector would ballot for a tremendous number of parliamentary candidates. The winning party would get two-thirds of the votes of the other parties, the remaining third being divided proportionately. A government majority would thus be assured.

MERRIMAC SCHOOL IN UPROAR

Boys and Girls Walk Out, Cheering for Miss Collins; Ignore Her "Successor"

Merrimac, May 17.—Thirty boys and girls, pupils in the seventh grade at the Prospect street public school, struck today because their room teacher, Miss Elizabeth Collins of Newburyport, had received notice from the School Board that she had not been re-elected.

Miss Collins received her School Board letter yesterday morning. It closed with: "Please keep this matter quiet until the end of the term."

But she read the letter to the pupils and asked them to inform their parents.

The news spread so quickly that School Superintendent Herbert Knox and Dr. Eugene Sweetser, chairman of the board, arrived at noon. Miss Collins says they told her to go immediately.

She left, accompanied to the electric car by some of the boys and all the girls, the latter crying.

On advice of her counsel, Attorney William Herlihy of Newburyport,

DARING GIRL FLIER GETS FIRST LICENSE

Washington May 17.—Miss Amelia M. Earhart of Atchison, Kas., today received the first license granted to a woman by the National Aeronautic Association, after completing the test flights, during which she piloted her plane to an altitude of 11,000 feet, believed to be the highest flown by a woman.

$500,000 CARGO MISSING AFTER STEAMSHIP IS WRECKED

MATE HELD IN LOOTING OF VESSEL

John Dorsey, after an investigation, learned from a diver who examined the wreck that less than ten per cent of the cargo reported aboard the wreck could be found. The total value of the ship's consignments was placed at more than $500,000.

The assertion of the authorities that the valuable merchandise was stolen and a substitute loaded was borne out by the statements of residents of Greenland that a number of empty five-gallon oil cans and packing cases came ashore after the ship foundered.

The public and Federal government investigation disclosed that the "dense fog" in which the Binghamton struck the shoal was sufficiently dispelled to permit Quartermaster David Berlow to sight land a half mile away.

It was learned that the boat had not been propertly provisioned for a voyage to Riga and other Russian ports, as scheduled, and that the mysterious fire that followed in the wake of the wreck was due to kerosene the captain ordered sprayed about the superstructure to kill vermin.

A number of disclosures as to the operations and plans of the conspirators are promised by the police who say that the case has wider ramifications than first suspected.

JILTING HALTS MARRIAGE OF NANCY HOYT

Hoyt's sister, Mrs. Horace Wylie, who has been twice divorced, and whose first husband, Philip Hichborn, committed suicide, are rumored, however, to be the real cause of the breaking off of the marriage.

The facts, it is said, were unknown to Lieutenant Wiseman-Clarke's family until two days ago, when they were called to the attention of Mr. and Mrs. Wiseman-Clarke, who were greatly shocked. Mrs. Hoyt was so seriously offended that she at once terminated the engagement between her daughter Nancy and the lieutenant.

SHOCK TO CAPITAL.

News of the cancelling of the marriage shocked Washington society. Dinners and dances in honor of the bridal party have been given every evening for the last week, the concluding festivity being the dinner-dance given Tuesday night by Senator and Mrs. J. W. Wadsworth, Jr., whose daughter Evelyn was to have been one of Miss Hoyt's bridesmaids.

champion swimmer, composer, scenario writer, authoress, actress, treasurer of a manufacturing concern, inventor, oil stock saleswoman and promotor of grand opera.

It was in this last venture she made use of the name of Mr. Kahn, internationally known for his connection with the Metropolitan Opera. It is alleged the operatic venture went to smash shortly after it started.

Mr. Kahn today denied he had given her permission to use his name. He said: "I have no recollection of ever having met the woman or having been informed of the details of her operatic plan. I never gave her a letter of recommendation."

Mrs. Butler obtained a divorce from her husband, Henry, in 1915. This was accompanied by several sensational kidnapings of their son, Billy, slander actions, suits to maintain peace and other legal proceedings. She was given custody of the boy.

George Gordon Battle, attorney for Mrs. Hayes, broke his silence today long enough to say: "Mrs. Hayes will not plead guilty. I am representing her in this matter alone. I know nothing of her history. She has no intention of changing her plea."

TEACHER FIRED; PUPILS STRIKE

Miss Collins returned to school today. She found Mrs. William Tutwell in her room as substitute. Argument ensued.

The children became boisterous. They shouted: "We are going on strike. We want Miss Collins!" All the children marched out and stood in the yard, cheering Miss Collins.

Mrs. Tutwell declared school dismissed and left. Miss Collins remained. Superintendent Knox and Chairman Sweetser arrived. Miss Collins says that when she refused to leave at their bidding they hurried away saying they would send the police.

At last accounts Miss Collins was holding the fort inside the school and the children outside were cheering her.

man and leaped through the window. Delphina started to defend herself. The fighting pair fell out.

Neighbors, attracted by the crash and groans of the sisters, saw a man running away. They called the police.

It is believed that the burglary was committed by someone in the neighborhood who knew that the girls planned to return to their native country, Portugal, and who thought they had had all their savings in their possession.

Panama—The British tanker Mina Brea, carrying 8,000 tons of oil from Talora to Havana, caught fire at Cristobal while passing through the canal from Balboa. The flames were brought under control after a two-hour fight.

TWO HELD IN N. Y. RUM ROW PLOT

New York, May 17.—Jacob A. Hirsh and Nathan Sharlin, two of the eighteen for whom Federal warrants were issued yesterday as a result of the alleged rum-running activities of the British steamer Yankton, today were held in $5,000 bail each for the Grand Jury.

Produced in court by counsel Colonel Thomas B. Felder, they waived examination.

Colonel Felder said he had expected also to have produced Abraham Scharlin and Edward Flanigan of Chicago and Washington, but Abraham was in Europe and he had been unable to locate Flanigan.

MOTHER FORCED HER TO WED, GIRL SAYS

Stating that she was forced to marry Laury Houston Hubbard, twenty-one years old, a sailor stationed at the submarine base at New London, by her mother, Lillian May Hawes, eighteen years old, of No. 396 Main street, Charlestown, petitioned the Superior Court to annul the marriage.

Miss Hawes, who is employed as a salesgirl in Boston, and Hubbard were married on July 11, 1922, by Rev. J. F. Stowe of the Charlestown Methodist Church. Immediately after the ceremony Hubbard left for New London. The girl declares that they never lived together.

Six months after their marriage she says she wrote Hubbard that she did not love him and would not live with him. He has visited her on numerous occasions, but Hubbard never remained over night she declares.

She said that when she told Hubbard she did not love him, he replied: "I will make you love me." Hubbard is not contesting the proceedings.

Minus Signs but—
Pity the Children
Employers and Workers
Rockefeller and Ford

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

"STOCKS IRREGULAR in quiet trading." That's the stock exchange way of saying that things look dubious—telling the truth without frightening the lambs too violently.

Little minus signs appear after the various steel stock quotations. Some wise men think that something is wrong. Steel is a barometer.

Heed it, don't gamble.

BUT NOT EVERYTHING in high finance is gloomy. Standard Oil of New Jersey shows for last year a surplus of over $46,000,000. After paying out everything, expenses, depreciation, taxes, everything, and S. O. of N. J. is only one Standard Oil baby. It has little brother and sister S. O. babies in many States—and they are all well, thank you very much indeed.

PITY POOR CHILDREN in brutal or ignorant hands. Only the recording angel knows their sorrow.

Raymond Baker, ten years old, was broken-hearted when his mother ran off with a strange man, leaving him and his father alone. His school mates, with the cruelty of little savages, taunted and teased him about his mother. Shame drove him from school. His father punished him "for his own good" for truancy. The child kills himself then with his father's short-barrelled rifle, also for his own good.

THAT'S ONE TRUE story. Here's another, in the same day's news. Dominick Gianettino, aged twelve, came home late. His father promised him a whipping, but postponed it until next morning. In the morning he was busy and deferred the beating again, meanwhile chaining his son to a kitchen chair to make sure he would not run away.

After five hours police, called by a neighbor, found the child so firmly bound by the heavy chain twisted around his wasted legs that they had to carry him, chair and all, to the police station. When the father came with his key to unlock the padlocked chain, he explained, casually, that the boy would not mind him.

IMAGINE THAT CHILD'S agony of mind, all night in terror, and then for hours in chains waiting for his own father to come and beat him.

And there are States that legalize beatings by school teachers. A collective crime unworthy of cannibals. No wonder that a human race, vile enough to beat feeble children, should be constantly at war.

THE MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION is told America will turn Bolshevik unless the open shop is established and unions suppressed. Do the gentlemen understand that powerful unions and high wages destroyed the old Russian government or did the Czars fall because workers and peasants were dissatisfied? To keep workmen contented let them at least organize, as their employers organize.

"THE HAND OF SYMPATHY, encouragement and love" is what the workers need, not selfish unions, according to the manufacturers' president. If that is true, the workers don't know it. They think they want good wages, short hours, regular work and independence.

Offer any manufacturer "sympathy, encouragement and love" instead of profit on a contract and hear what he'll say.

NO GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP, say the manufacturers. "Government should refrain from competition with its own citizens, in any form of business which they can successfully undertake."

What about railroads? Tracks were blocked with loaded coal cars last Winter while citizens lacked coal because the roads could not haul it. Is that "successful?"

WOMEN CLASH OVER GOULD FORTUNE

Mrs. George J. Gould, second wife of dead financier, an actress, whom he married in 1922, six months after his first wife, Edith Kingdon Gould, dropped dead on the golf links of the Gould estate at Lakewood, N. J.

Former Anna Gould, now Duchess De Talleyrand, who disapproved of her brother's second wife, and whom it is said will not go to Mentone, France, from where the body of her brother, George J. Gould, will be shipped to America.

DUCHESS DE TALLEYRAND

America "Dying" of Her Gold Asserts Louis Loucher

Paris, May 17.—"America is about to die of her gold," declared Louis Loucher, former Minister of Liberated Regions, in an interview here.

The United States had only one means of saving herself from ruin, he said. This was to tender to France immediately all the money the latter might need.

Referring to reparations, M. Louchur said they were bound up with inter-allied debts.

"We are ready to remit the debts of the Powers who fought beside us," he asserted, "on the condition that ours be remitted to us."

FAMILY FIGHT IN COURT OVER GOLD

By C. F. BERTELLI

Paris, May 17.—The Gould family finances and the Gould family misunderstandings and personal relations are already subjects of gossip and speculation following the death at Mentone of George Jay Gould from pneumonia.

These family quarrels may result in controversy over the dead financiers' estate.

The Duchess De Talleyrand, formerly Anna Gould, who as recently as last week stated that she disapproved of her brother George's marriage to Mrs. Guinevere Jeanne Sinclair, which occurred six months after the death of his first wife, today would not discuss her brother.

According to some of her intimate friends, however, she is not expected to go to Mentone, from where the body of her brother will be shipped to America by way of Cherbourg.

Frank J. Gould was today as reticent as his sister on family affairs, professing utter ignorance regarding his brother George's financial arrangements.

George Jay Gould, who was born in New York City, February 6, 1864, was the eldest son of Jay Gould and became the active head of the great enterprises controlled by his father upon the latter's death, December 2, 1892. He managed the properties for more than twenty years and under his control the Gould fortunes were vastly increased, the reported holdings jumping under this administration from $80,000,000 to more than $200,000,000.

SLAYS MATE WHO BEAT CHILDREN

New York Wife, Mother of 13, Kills Husband on Her 30th Wedding Day

New York, May 17.—Mrs. Mary Lanigan, mother of thirteen children, six of whom are living, was held without bail today charged with first degree murder, accused of having killed her husband, John, on the thirtieth anniversary of their wedding.

Their son William, thirteen years old, was held as a material witness.

Police say Mrs. Lanigan claimed she killed her husband because of his continued brutality to her and the children. He left her last year, she told the police, after he had spent $6,200 received by their son, Richard, twenty-three years old, in settlement of a claim against a railroad after he lost a leg in an accident.

Their daughter Anna, Mrs. Lanigan told the police, went to the father's shop to ask for money. She returned home, declaring she had been beaten and thrown out. Mrs. Lanigan said she then went to the shop with her son, William, only to suffer the same fate.

Police said Mrs. Lanigan shot her husband with a pistol she found in his shop. She dashed to the street screaming:

"I didn't mean to do it. With all his faults, I loved him. Poor John."

WIFE BOBS HAIR AND HUBBY QUITS

Chicago, May 17.—Judge Morgan in the court of domestis relations must decide whether Raymond O'Malley, a street car conductor shall return to his wife and child. O'Malley deserted his family because, he said, he came home one night and found that his wife had bobbed her luxuriant tresses.

MRS. HOYT'S ROMANCE BROKEN

Society Girl Who Broke Into the Movies and Married a Broker Sues for Divorce

New York, May 17.—Reports from Paris today said Mrs. Lydig Hoyt is establishing residence there for the purpose of beginning divorce proceedings.

Her husband, Lydig Hoyt, broker and an army lieutenant during the war, was not at any of his various clubs, and at Mrs. Hoyt's home, No. 106 East Sixty-seventh street, it was said that they had "no idea where Mr. Hoyt might be."

In Paris Mrs. Hoyt refused to discuss the case, but friends admitted that the first papers will be served about the end of this month.

Mrs. Hoyt was Julia Robbins, daughter of Julian Robbins, the banker. In 1921 she startled society by going into the "movies," appearing with Norma Talmadge in "The Beautiful Thing." Then she turned to the legitimate stage and appeared with William Faversham in his revival of "The Squaw Man." Her stage name is Julia Hoyt.

The Hoyts were married July 4, 1913, at St. George's Church, Stuyvesant square, by the Rev. Karl Reiland. Both are lovers of the outdoors and both were familiar figures at the meets of the Meadowbrook Club, the Piping Rock gatherings and events at the Turf and Field Club.

Hoyt is a broker at No. 59 Wall street. He was for several years secretary to Whitelaw Reid when the latter was ambassador to the Court of St. James. His New York club is the Knickerbrocker.

GERMANS SEND $14,250,000 GOLD TO U. S.

Berlin, May 17.—The fourth payment by Germany to meet the treasury bills advanced to Belgium for settlement of Belgium's claims during the last half of 1922, was made by the government. This instalment amounted to 58,500,000 gold marks.

Noting this payment, the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung today says:

"In connection with the foregoing we learn in official quarters that a shipment of 60,000,000 gold marks (about $14,250,000), already is en route to America."

The newspaper does not explain this connection, but it adds that the sum will be accounted for in the next statement of the Reichsbank.

The three previous payments on the treasury bills given to Belgium were respectively 47,400,000 gold marks, 48,600,000 gold marks, and 47,400,000 gold marks. The final instalment of 60,000,000 gold marks is due June 15.

FORMER BOSTON COP ACCUSED AS BURGLAR

John M. Mellen of No. 461 Massachusetts avenue, until a few weeks ago a member of the Boston police force, is under arrest for burglary.

He is accused of entering the home of Francis Murphy of No. 76 Hinckley street, Somerville, and taking $30 in cash from a drawer in a bureau.

J. M. Mellen

He was arrested in the South End by Patrolmen Frank J. Roche and Daniel M. O'Connell of the Somerville police after the latter scoured the section for hours, armed with a warrant.

WOMEN RENEW FIGHT FOR MINIMUM WAGE

Washington, May 17.—A program to meet the recent Supreme Court decision declaring unconstitutional the District of Columbia Minimum Wage Law for Women, will be undertaken by a committee appointed by the National Women's Trade Union League.

The committee was instructed to consider especially legislative proposals for protection of women workers, and measures for restriction of the powers of the Supreme Court. Amendment of the Constitution to insure protection for social legislation and "the rights of labor," were indicated as other proposals.

TRAPS CAPTAIN OF BRITISH DRAGOONS

Captain Maurice Friend of the British Dragoons, who informed Boston acquaintances that he has his suits built by the Prince of Wales' own tailor, has been trapped into arrest by a New York society woman, Mrs. Diana Norman of West Seventy-second street.

She chearges his with larceny of a $5,000 necklace. When he called on her next time she detained him with blithe chatter while her sister called an officer.

Even then the arrest was not consummated until the policeman had chased the captain up Broadway. The New York police say the captain admitted having pawned the necklace for $1,000 in Boston, then redeeming it and pawning it again in New York.

Captain Friend was acquitted in Boston Municipal Court last month on a charge of attempting to defraud the Copley Plaza Hotel of $118.

VICTORIOUS OVER THE KELLYS

South Boston Man Who Sang at Night Awarded Verdict by Jury of His Peers

The old saying that a man who tries his own case has a fool for a client was knocked galley west today by James O'Brien of No. 655 Fourth street, South Boston, who won a not guilty verdict.

Mr. O'Brien appeared before Judge Dubuque and a jury in Superior Court on an appeal from a fine of $5 imposed in South Boston District Court, where he was found guilty of disturbing the peace.

Mrs. Hester Kelly, who lives in the same house with O'Brien, was the complainant.

Mrs. Kelly told the judge that on March 7 O'Brien tried to freeze her out by leaving the door open, that he sang at 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning to her discomfort and that occasionally he shouted he was going to "kill the Kellys at the rising of the moon."

NIGHTLY SERENADE.

Mrs. Kelly said O'Brien serenaded the Kellys five nights a week and that he kept his feet going "perpetual like." He'd sing, she said, and when he got tired of that he rests up a little by whistling. Then he'd sing again.

"How long did he sing?" queried Assistant District Attorney McCarty, meek like.

"At the top of his lungs," she replied.

"Do you want to ask the witness any questions, O'Brien?" said Judge Dubuque.

"Do I, sir? A lot of them, I'm saying, thank your honor.

"Mrs. Kelly, did I ever thrun you out of my kitchen?"

"You did," said she.

"You were standing at me table, your arms akimbo, telling me wife all the news, weren't you?"

"I was not."

"What do you mean you was not?

"My arms wasn't akimbo," she snapped.

DENIES WELLESLEY COLLEGE IS HOTBED OF RED DOCTRINES

President Ellen Fitz Pendleton of Wellesley College bitterly attacked the charge that students in Wellesley and other women's colleges are being fed radical and socialistic doctrines, made by Mrs. B. L. Robinson, president of the Massachusetts Public Interests League, and wife of a Harvard professor. "Wellesley College is not a 'hotbed of Socialism,' as charged by Mrs. Robinson," President Pendleton declared. "I cannot conceive upon what basis she makes the charge.

"Mrs. Robinson must know very little about Wellesley. People who are acquainted with Wellesley do not make such allegations."

CHELSEA BOY OF 5 CRUSHED TO DEATH BY AN AUTOMOBILE

Harry Horace.

Harry Horace, five years old, No. 75 Summer street, Chelsea, was crushed to death beneath the wheels of an automobile at Spruce and Third streets, Chelsea. Suffering with shock, the boy's mother is in the hands of neighbors, who are also caring for her two children, one of them a ten-months-old baby.

According to Philip Reisman, No. 45 Blossom street, Chelsea, driver of the automobile, the Horace boy dashed from the sidewalk directly in front of the car. He said there was no time to stop the machine.

'ALL HUSBANDS DO IT,' SAYS AUTHOR AS HE KILLS WIFE

London, May 17.—The noted Florentine writer, Signor Massini, shot his wife fatally after a quarrel and then surrendered to the police with the remark: "All husbands do this sooner or later," says a Florence dispatch to the Daily Mail.

Massini, who was the head of a publishing house, recently wrote a psychological novel, entitled "Frederico Durga." The novel, which was a great success, appeared under the pseudonym Cesare Cadigo.

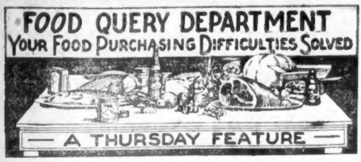
FOOD QUERY DEPARTMENT
YOUR FOOD PURCHASING DIFFICULTIES SOLVED



— A THURSDAY FEATURE —

Are you at a loss as to where you can secure some particular brand or kind of foodstuffs? If so, write the Boston American Food Query Editor. We will answer your inquiry in these columns as quickly as possible.

Food Query Editor:

I have heard of late about a sweetened Southern style cocoanut, put up in tins. As I understand it, this cocoanut is moist, but there is no water or milk used in the preparation. I may have this thing all wrong, but if you know of a product anything like I have mentioned and can tell me where I can buy it, will be greatly obliged.

MRS. JOHN H. DEARDEN.
Dorchester, Mass.

The Franklin Baker Company of Philadelphia have just started putting out a new can of Southern style sweetened moist cocoanut, very fine shredded. Have just opened a can of the above product and have no hesitancy in pronouncing same a very delicious, high-grade article. You can secure this product at any of the following chain stores: John T. Connor Company, Ginter Grocery Company, E. E. Gray, Atlantic & Pacific, M. O'Keefe and the Economy Stores.

Food Query Editor:

Have you ever heard of "Cannie Italian Gravy? You can buy this sauce anywhere in the South, but I cannot find a store that keeps or ever heard of this particular brand. It is put up in a decorated can showing the picture of a chef stirring something in a large kettle. I mention this as it might help you to locate this article.

MRS. GEORGE UNDERWOOD.
Dorchester, Mass.

We know of Cannie Italian Gravy, put up by the Southern Home Canning Company of Memphis, Tenn., but cannot locate a store that handles same here in Boston. If you write the Southern Home Canning Company of Memphis, Tenn., no doubt they will take care of your wants direct.

Food Query Editor:

A friend of mine told me of a wonderful mayonnaise, claiming that it was so creamy and delicious. I am quite sure she called it Crest Brand, and it is put up by some woman. Could you, through your column, help me find this out? MRS. E. H. COSTELLO.
Roxbury, Mass.

We do not seem to be able to locate the Crest Brand of mayonnaise you speak of but the S. S. Pierce Company have a mayonnaise put up especially for them by a Mrs. Parks of Boston, and it is known as the "Monogram" mayonnaise. This possibly might be the article you are looking for.

Food Query Editor:

We have just moved from Chicago and would like to know where we can buy Rose Brand sliced beef, put up in glass jars. This beef is very popular in Chicago, and no one here seems to know of it. Could you through your valuable column help us out?

MRS. MICHAEL CURLEY.
Jamaica Plain.

Rose Brand sliced beef, put up by the Foell Supply Company of Chicago, seems to have just arrived on this market. I understand the retail stores have not had time to stock same yet. But you can secure this article from the Charles E. Moody Company, wholesale grocers, No. 229 State street, Boston.

Food Query Editor:

I have used on several occasions a Red Crown brand of pure fruit jellies. I admit I have never bought this brand of goods in the East, nor have I ever seen them advertised or displayed in a store. I think they are put up in St. Louis or Chicago. I find the Red Crown Brand of jellies very economical and delicious. Could you tell me where I can buy this brand of goods? MRS. D. B. MORSE.
West street, Newton, Mass.

Red Crown Brand of jellies are put up by the Acme Packing Company of Chicago, and we are afraid you will have to secure these goods direct from the Acme people. Do not know of a jobber or retailer handling this brand.

Food Query Editor:

We are very fussy about the olive oil we buy, as I use it for medicinal purposes as well as for salad, etc. When we were in Springfield we used a Carmelo olive oil. This is a very choice imported olive oil, absolutely pure. Could I get this brand here in Boston? If you do not know of this brand I wish you would recommend some fancy French olive oil that is absolutely pure. Thanking you, I remain

MRS. J. W. LIBBY.
Everett, Mass.

You can secure the Carmelo Brand of olive oil in any of the Mohican Stores. I understand these people handle it in their various stores all over the country. Most likely you purchased this brand from them while you were in Springfield.

MYSTERY OVER AUTHORSHIP OF BOOK THRILLER

The literary world buzzes with the success of a book which has attracted more attention than "The Shiek," and bids fair to become the greatest seller of popular fiction in the history of American publishing.

The book is "Flaming Youth," published by Bond & Liveright of New York.

A mystery connected with the book is the author. The book is signed "By Warner Fabian," but it is generally known that this is merely a pen name. At various times it has been reported that "Warner Fabyan" is Mrs. Hull, the author of "The Shiek"; George Bernard Shaw playing one of his famous literary pranks; Hall Caine and E. Phillips Oppenheim.

The publishers refuse to reveal the identity of the author of this book, of which the Philadelphia Ledger had this to say:

"It is really a flaming book. It leaps out and rushes with such drama that one refuses to lay the book down before assuring one's self of the denouement. You will exclaim 'Good God!' at various times as an expression of admiration or dismay. And when you've read it you won't forget it for a long time."

SINGING O'BRIEN WINS AGAINST THE KELLEYS

"Didn't you once say to my wife that I was a lovely singer?"

"Faith, and I never did that."

"Didn't you ever want to kiss me when we were in the cellar?"

"No. I wasn't thinking of dying of hydrophobia."

"Did you ever tell me when I made a joking remark that all the girls were in love with me, that that you were not?"

"I never did."

Judge Dubuque then cautioned O'Brien that his line of questioning was immaterial. Whereupon O'Brien replied:

"All right, Judge, Your Honor, I'm going to pass it up. But I think it is, just the same.

SILENT HUSBAND.

"Did I tell you, Mrs. Kelly, on St. Patrick's Day that you ought to be in the parade?"

"No."

"Your husband's a decent man, is he not?"

"He is."

"Yes, and I never heard the sound of his voice in his own house, because he was afraid to speak," added O'Brien.

"What do you mean, I let the blizzard in on you March 7,? When I came downstairs at 5:40 o'clock the door was open and the blizzard was half way upstairs to you. Do you think I'm so hot blooded I'd stand out in a blizzard?"

"I don't know what you are, but II saw you standing outdoors in your shirtsleeves and I went down and told Captain Rooney about it. He sent some officers up."

"Did he now? I didn't think that of Captain Rooney."

COURT OBJECTS.

O'Brien then told the court he would like to go over with Mrs. Kelly incidents in connection with St. Patrick's Day, but the judge ruled this out as coming after the datae of the complaint.

O'Brien then took the stand and disposed of his case as follows:

"In the first place, your honor and gentlemen of the jury, I've often said Mrs. Kelly was no good, but I never called her worse, as she says.

"For five years I have held my job and how could I work eight hours a day and sing all night? I sing in my own house. Sure I do. I sing 'The Wearin' of the Green" and "Shaun O'Farrell." This woman here is like Biddy Moriarty and Daniel O'Connell, and I'll say no more. Much obliged."

It took the jury only ten minutes to reach its not guilty verdict.

O'Brien is an ardent Sinn Feiner. He says he's going to Ireland in three weeks. He promises to start somthing there.

TOO MANY TEETH ARE PULLED, THOMA SAYS

Atlantic City, N. J., May 17.—Incorrect diagnosis is responsible for the ruthless extraction of a great many teeth which could have been saved, Dr. Kurt H. Thoma, a Boston dentist, told the American Laryngological Society in convention here today. Dr. Francis P. Emerson of Boston, in an address, said he had found tonsilitis to be more common in adults past middle age than in children.

MISS RUTH ROSE.
Marshfield girl who has just returned from Galapagos Island, Pacific Ocean, with rare specimens of the animal kingdom.

SEA LIONS PETS OF MARSHFIELD GIRL EXPLORER

New York, May 17.—Bearing tales of friendly sea lions that licked their faces while they lay asleep on the sands, Miss Ruth Rose of Marshfield Hills, Mass., and Miss Isabel Cooper, artist, returned today from the Galapagos Islands, 600 miles west of Ecuador, with the Harrison Williams exploration expedition.

Aboard the Williams yacht, Noma, were many rare specimens of flightless cormorants, monster horned lizards, doves, monkeys, penguins and rare purple jays and other birds and animals peculiar to the Galapagos group.

The explorers also reported the finding of a natural harbor, formed by a sunken crater, large enough to shelter the largest ships in the world. This they named Darwin Bay.

In addition to the two women there were in the party William M. Wheeler, professor of entomology, Dean Bussey Institute; Dr. James Mitchell of Washington, James Curtis, New York; William Merriman and Gilbert Brooking, Harold Hoffman, marine artist; John Tevan, photographer; Dr. Hamilton Frobisher, physician to the expedition; Professor William Beebe, director of the British-Guiana Tropical Research station and Harrison Williams.

DUVEEN, FAMED ART CRITIC, IS SUED

New York, May 17.—G. J. De Motte, art dealer, filed suit for $500,000 damages in the Supreme Court here against Sir Joseph Duveen, the world famous art expert.

Mr. De Motte charged that Sir Joseph's remarks, doubting the authenticity of a Champleve enamel "Virgin and Child," sold by Demotte to the late Michael Dreicer, had reflected upon the good name of the plaintiff.

He contended that Sir Joseph's statements that the enamel was not genuine not only reflected upon his (De Motte's) skill, ability and integrity, but held him up to the business community as an art dealer who was unable to distinguish genuine from imitation Champleve enamels.

The enamel in dispute comes from the collection of the Prince Antoine D'Orleans, Duke of Calliera, uncle of the King of Spain. It originally belonged to Queen Isabella, who, according to tradition, took it with her on all her journeys, she prized it so highly.

"I made a careful examination of this enamel. I was not then aware that it had already been seriously questioned abroad and that a recognized expert had condemned it. I concluded solely from my own examination that it was not a genuine of the beginning of the thirteenth century.

"My opinion was not a personal reflection upon DeMotte or upon anyone else. It is a judgment upon the article and not upon the person.

"While I have no personal quarrel with DeMotte, still I shall not be intimidated either by this law suit or by his promises of wholesale public donation at my expense.

"It is, of course, a lamentable condition if an art expert, qualified by years of study, research and experience, is to be haled to court every time he gives his honest, professional opinion on objects of art brought to him for judgment.

"However, I understand that De Motte will have ample opportunity to prove the authenticity of his Virgin and Child. His controversy with the Dreicer estate involves, I am told, only the authenticity of this enamel.

"If it is genuine and as represented, he should win that law suit and thereby vindicate his judgment as well as his enamel. He will then have lost nothing and will have suffered no damage.

"If, however, he should lose that law suit and have to refund the purchase price, then he and his enamel will have been proved wrong and my opinion vindicated.

NO RECORDS OF MRS. CROKER IN NORTHAMPTON

Northampton, May 17.—No record that Guy R. Marone was married to Mrs. Richard Croker before she became the bride of the former New York politician, as alleged by Mrs. Ethel C. White and Mrs. Florence Morris, daughters of Croker, can be found in the records at City Hall here.

Friends of Marone recall, however, that in the Fall of 1911 he returned with a slim, dark-skinned woman, who might answer the description of the "Indian Princess" wife of the ex-Tammany Boss, and presented her as his bride.

Mrs. White represented in her petition to the Irish Court of Appeals that the "Indian Princess" was bigamously wedded to her father because of an alleged marriage in 1911 at Northampton. The daughter is seeking to break her father's will which left $7,000,000 to his widow.

The couple frequently quarreled, friends state, and repartee was exchanged which was then unsignificant, but in view of recent developments, might indicate that there had been no marriage ceremony.

LOVE TRIANGLE HUSBAND WANTS TO TAKE BOTH "WIVES" ON STAGE

WOMEN TO DECIDE ON PLAN

Called for Rehearsals, Cummings Hates to Leave Wife No. 1 Behind

Derby, Ct., May 17.—Roy Cummings, the acrobatic dancer and comedian, is so delighted by the results of his bold experiment of taking his former wife to live with his wife No. 2, in a triangular love nest here, that he wants to take them both on the stage with him.

He said today: "Our plan of living together here has been so splendid that I hate to spoil it. I should like to have my wife No. 1 travel with me and with No. 2 in my stage act, but I don't know that they would consent.

Cummings will have to leave the pretty little bungalow he and his wives have built in an idyllic spot on the shores of the Housatonic River here and begin rehearsals next week. The real Mrs. Cummings—No. 2—will have to go with him, for she is his stage partner.

Both wives appeared to be as delighted as Cummings with their extraordinary triangular family. They said they found it more pleasant to work together than singly. There was only half as much to do.

They declared that they were happy and friendly, but admitted here were some complications such as the difficulty of ascertaining which of the two women was meant when somebody asked for Mrs. Cummings.

The maid who answers the telephone always inquires, "which one?"

Loses Her Life

MRS. MARY L. PARKER

Every effort to arouse Mrs. Parker of Malden failed after she laid down on a couch in her home to rest. Physicians have been unable to determine how she contracted sleeping sickness.

BEN HOOPER WARNS OF RADICAL IDEAS

New York, May 17 (By International News Service.)—Warning against radical doctrines was sounded by Ben W. Hooper, chairman of the United States Railroad Board, in an address before the National Association of Manufacturers today.

"There are a lot of wild-eyed radicals and demagogues in this country," Hooper said, "who believe they can sell any kind of an idea to the people by labeling it progressive. It will pay the people to take a good look at the political wares that are brought around bearing our favorite label."

In deprecating strikes Hooper said: "The most dangerous tendency of organized labor is the idea of domination by force."

WOMAN DIES AFTER SLEEP OF 86 HOURS

After being unconscious for eighty-six hours Mrs. Mary L. Parker, forty-five years old, of No. 16 Sargent street, Malden, is dead. Physicians diagnosed her illness as sleeping sickness.

Mrs. Parker complained Saturday night of feeling tired. She lay down on a couch to rest, fell asleep and never regained consciousness.

Mrs. Parker was the wife of C. P. Parker, chief engineer of the Tri-mount Manufacturing Company of Roxbury. She is survived by her husband and one son.

SELL 97 PIGGLY STORES FOR A MILLION

Memphis, Tenn., May 17.—Conferences between Clarence Saunders, president of Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., and members of the "pool" associated with him in recent sensational activities of the corporation's stock, continue after announcement that the ninety-seven units of the company in Chicago have been sold to Chicago financiers.

Names of the purchasers were not published by Mr. Saunders, who declared that the price obtained was "more than a million dollars."

Negotiations for the sale of further holdings of the company in a number of other cities are understood to be in progress.

Proceeds from the Chicago deal and prospective additional sales are to be used in liquidating bank loans made during the Piggly Wiggly stock flurry several weeks ago.

Lawrence Misses Fire Chief's Dog, Ill in Hospital

Lawrence, May 17.—One of the fire department's most valuable members is ill. Smoky, the dog of Deputy Fire Chief Michael McPhee, is at the dog hospital with yellow jaundice.

The dog is one of the department's most faithful members, attending every fire.

Since the dog has been ill the deputy has been deluged with questions as to his welfare.

STRIKE THREAT BY FIREMEN IN DOVER, N. H.

Dover, N. H., May 17.—At midnight Friday the city of Dover will be without organized fire protection unless the City Council discharges first and second engineers of the fire department.

Forty-eight of the fifty-four members of the department, including Chief Charles Michell, are ready to turn in their resignations unless the council drops the two men.

Patrick Bradley, first assistant, and Terence O'Neil, second assistant engineer, are facing several charges preferred by their chief. The two engineers, it is understood, have the support of Mayor Charles G. Waldron.

JUSTICE 'FIRES' MAINE JURY IN RUM CASE

Alfred, Me., May 17.—When a jury in Supreme Court here returned a verdict of "not guilty" in a liquor case, Justice W. C. Philbrook ordered them discharged from further service.

"If this is a sample of your sentiment in criminal cases," he said, "you are of no value as jurors."

The case was that of Hector Monier of Biddeford who had appealed from sentence of the lower court.

MRS. NICHOLS NEARLY DRIVEN MAD BY HUSBAND'S JEALOUSY

DECLARES SHE WAS VICTIM OF YEARS OF ESPIONAGE

Suspicion, jealousy and years of espionage on the part of her husband, John H. Nichols of Wellesley Hills, nearly drove Mrs. Ruth Buckingham Nichols frantic, she relates in the account of her married life, given exclusively to the Boston American.

The detailed narrative of this modern version of "Bought and Paid For" appears daily in the Boston American.

The breaking point in the life of the Nichols came when the husband flung a name at his wife that no woman can endure.

The accusation contained a reference to alleged relations of Mrs. Nichols with her chauffeur, with whom she fled to a lonely shack at Billerica, accompanied by her two children and their governess.

Clarence Foster was the chauffeur.

"I want to let the public know about this phase of the case," said Mrs. Nichols. "My husband hired him following trouble we had over a tutor for the children. Mr. Nichols had accused me of an interest in the tutor. That didn't surprise me. He constantly accused me of undue friendliness with any man to whom I might nod or smile.

"Foster was well recommended. My husband gave him instructions to the effect, that at all times he was to obey my orders. He was to be my chauffeur, and my orders went, even though they contradicted previous orders given by my husband. This was the understanding when Foster was engaged.

"He left of his own accord after serving us for some months. It was Mr. Nichols who engaged him again. I cite all these things to show how blameless I was. It is my belief that he deliberately made Foster my personal chauffeur in order to test me. He gave Foster orders time and again which tended to bring us into close association. He would ask Foster to take me out on long drives, and he would not accompany me. Whether he followed us or not on such occasions I do not know.

"Lillian Ferguson, the children's governess, was Foster's fiancee. She was always loyal to me, and because of her, I took a friendly interest in Foster.

"Certainly it is possible, when one's mind is clouded with eternal suspicion, to place a shady construction upon even the most innocent of acts. Miss Ferguson and the chauffeur were to be married. She was fixing up the apartment in which they were to live after they were married. She asked me if I wouldn't go and help her arrange the apartment. She had confidence in my taste in the matter of furniture and interior decoration.

FOLLOWED BY HUSBAND.

"I agreed to go, and went. My husband followed me to the apartment. He expected, perhaps hoped, to find me there with Foster. But he never did. Foster was never present in the apartment when I was there, without Miss Ferguson being there, too.

"One of my husband's charges is that I possessed a key to Foster's apartment. I want to explain that, in the first place, it was not Foster's apartment. It was the apartment designed for Foster and his bride-to-be, Miss Ferguson.

"Lillian had the key, of course. She spent a great deal of her time in the apartment, fixing things up. The apartment had previously been occupied by Foster alone. Any woman knows it takes a great deal of time to fix up a place that a bachelor has occupied.

"One day, a week ago Monday it was, Lillian dropped the key to the apartment on a landing of the stairway in our Wellesley home. I saw it there as I went out. Keys look very much alike. I picked it up. I thought it was one of our door keys—perhaps my husband's. I placed the key in my purse or pocket—I've forgotten which.

FORCED TO QUIT HOME.

"It appears that among other forms of espionage my husband was in the habit of going through my purse and pockets whenever he got a chance.

"He found the key. He promptly suspected that it was the key to Foster's apartment. He went there and tried the key and it fitted.

"That was when he confronted me and called me the vile name which still rings in my ears. It was an unspeakable insult. I tried to protest, to explain, to tell him how the key happened to be in my possession. But when he branded me as he did I realized it was hopeless.

"I turned on my heel and left.

"He did not discharge Foster then and there. He didn't dare to confront him with the groundless accusations he had made against me. Foster is a man. My husband was afraid to call him the name he called me.

"Instead, he ordered Foster, by telephone, to come to his office. There, protected by business associates and clerks, he fired him.

"The vile things he said to his wife he didn't dare to say to his chauffeur."

(Tomorrow's installment of this absorbing narrative will relate how Mr. Nichols fired a tutor for the same reason that he discharged his chauffeur.)

Giant Finnish Count Arrives in U. S. to Seek Fortune

New York, May 17.—Anyone who has a job for a Finnish count, six foot three, thirty, muscular and anxious to work, might apply to Count Carl M. Armfelt, who has come to America to make his way to fame and fortune.

The count is a graduate in engineering and found his job in the Finnish diplomatic office not conducive to the "pep" with which he is filled, so he has come here to enter business in the American style, which he called "splendidly energetic."

COLLEGE HEAD DENIES STORY OF ELOPEMENT

Hartford, Ct., May 17.—President David Friday of Michigan State Agricultural College, who came here to address the State Chamber of Commerce, today denied the report that he had eloped with his assistant, Miss Florence Knowlton Middaugh of Westfield, Mass.

Dr. Friday left here today for Lansing, Mich., where, dispatches from that city state, a special meeting of the college board of trustees has been called to demand his resignation.

"The only basis for the rumor," President Friday declared, "is that I left Lansing on Saturday last and that Miss Middaugh planned to drive to Quincy, Mich., on the same day.

"On Sunday morning I arrived in Washington and on Monday evening I addressed the National Manufacturers' Association in New York.

"The rumor is absurd, of course, but I regret it because of the annoyance to my wife, my three children and Miss Middaugh.

"I undertook the unpleasant task of rehabilitating the college fourteen months ago," he explained. "This necessitated getting rid of some of the faculty and I presume any disaffection had its roots in those events."

CHRIST COMING AGAIN SAYS MISS PANKHURST

"Only through religion and the power of the Almighty can the present world unrest be brought to an end."

"I believe that Christ is coming again. We are told he will come when the evils of the world are greatest and it seems that the time has now come."

Christabel Pankhurst

This is the message Miss Christabel Pankhurst, erstwhile militant suffragist, has come to Boston to deliver. She speaks at the annual ladies' night banquet of the Tremont Temple Brotherhood tonight.

Miss Pankhurst admits the defeat of her socialistic preachings and cites the conversion of Fred Stone, the comedian, as indicating the world's swing to religious thought.

Her own conversion came during the World War.

"The world today is facing a crisis the like of which has never before been known. My panacea, my cure is Jesus Christ," she says.

"Women since the war are in a more practical position than ever to help, but neither men nor women can put the world to right now without the help of Jesus Christ."

PLAN TO CELEBATE EMPIRE DAY, MAY 24

The Empire Day Festival annual celebration committee completed final arrangements for holding its annual celebration of Queen Victoria's Birthday on the evening of May 24 at the Boston Arena.

Some one hundred and fifty children have been in training for some time past for the May Festival. Music will be furnished by the Y. D. Band under the direction of Lieutenant J. J. O'Neil.

Society Watches Myopia Polo Men, Says Betty Alden

Miss Esther Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Baker, whose engagement to Robert J. Young, Harvard '17, was recently announced. Miss Baker was presented during the Winter of 1920-21.

By BETTY ALDEN.

THEY'RE lining up already—the crack players making up this year's Myopia polo team. And though the season is early, a gallery of interested onlookers watches each day that the wearers of the red and white turn out.

Freddy Ayer, of course, is again on the team, as are also the Burrage brothers—Albert, Jr., and Russell—Tom Mandell, just returned from a trip abroad, I believe; his brother-in-law, Neil Rice, who married Emma Mandell; Dudley P. Rogers and Harry Pratt McKean.

Apropos of the Myopia team, I understand that Freddy Prince, Jr., is to return to these shores from abroad, and will join the players immediately upon his arrival. The last time I saw the sport-loving son of the master of "Princemere," he was doing usher duty at the marriage of his petite sister-in-law, Alice Harding, to young Robert T. Pell. On this occasion, the bride's sister was much in evidence, for the wedding breakfast was held at the cottage which the Princes, Jr., had taken on the shore. Now that the marital ties of this couple have been severed, the one-time Elizabeth Harding is once more making her home with her father, William P. G. Harding, while her former husband, will, I presume, receive his mail at "Princemere."

WHILE the young and immensely wealthy John Nicholas Brown was a student at Harvard, his mother took a house on Commonwealth avenue to be near him, and during this period the Browns made a host of friends in the Hub.

Last Summer John Brown obtained his sheepskin from Harvard, and shortly afterwards he and Mrs. Brown started on their leisurely jaunt around the world. At present they are in Europe, planning to return late in the Summer to their Newport place known as "Harbour Court." During young Brown's college career he frequently entertained there.

MR. AND MRS. LOUIS CURTIS, JR. (Mary Colt), are receiving congratulations upon the birth of their second daughter born at their home, No. 447 Beacon street. Mrs. Curtis was formerly Miss Mary Colt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Colt of Park avenue, New York. Her wedding to the Boston man, Harvard, '14, took place at Garrison, N. Y., in June of 1921 and was one of the smartest ceremonials of the season.

MISS ELLEN MASON has leased her Newport cottage, known as Brent Lodge, to Mr. and Mrs. H. Leroy Jones of New York for the coming season.

RUSSIAN CAST GIVES NOTABLE PERFORMANCE

Eighty years and the most of it spent in the service of a family who went off and locked him up in the house forgotten. So it was that the years rewarded Firee, the dominating character of "The Cherry Orchard," by Tchekhoff, which was presented last night at the Majestic Theatre by the Moscow Art Theatre.

Vassily Luzhsky's characterization of the old, tottery, doddering servant, whose hands and feet have grown feeble in service, but whose mind and heart have remained true to the oldest and finest of traditions, is, from any conceivable angle, a perfect version of the role. Such pathos, such pity and such sympathy as he stirred in the hearts of the audience were the real reward of an artist of unapproachable attainments.

The story is familiar—the disillusioned mother returning to her old home, the enforced sale of the estate with its famous cherry orchard and the whole culminating in a heart-breaking leavetaking of the family from scenes that have been dear to them since childhood. The cast was, as always with this company, above criticism.

"The Cherry Orchard" will be repeated twice today and tomorrow night.

DEMOCRATIC WOMEN PLAN RECEPTION

Prominent women workers in the Democratic party have arranged a reception that is a distinct political inovation in that there will be no presiding officer, no speeches and no men present.

The occasion is a reception and tea given in honor of Mrs. Colin W. McDonald, first vice-chairman of the Democratic State Committee in charge of women's activities. It will be held Saturday, May 19, at 4 o'clock in the State suite at the Copley-Plaza, and the event will afford the opportunity to the many friends of Mrs. McDonald of indicating the esteem in which she is held and to permit others to meet her. Tea will be served and the Lettish Young People's orchestra will provide the instrumental part of the program.

PLENTY OF COAL PROMISED IN TWO MONTHS

An alibi for the coal situation in Massachusetts during the Winter just passed was offered by Edward Hamlin, president of the Metropolitan Coal Company, when he testified before the special coal investigation committee appointed by the Legislature.

Edward Hamlin.

"The coal situation in Massachusetts is not serious," he said. "Within the next two months there will be plenty of coal for everybody, provided the public will have faith in their dealers.

"Last year at this time there was only 60 per cent. of the usual amount of coal shipped into the State. There would not have been enough, however, even if the mines had shipped enough coal, due to the severe Winter and the transportation situation."

TO CROSS OCEAN IN SMALLEST 3-MASTER

Material for fiction writers will be furnished within a few weeks by Captain Graciano Reo, head of the Massachusetts Lobster Company. The captain and a half dozen friends have all plans completed to set sail for Portugal in the smallest three-masted schooner afloat.

The main reason for the trip in the little three-sticker is to bring Mrs. Reo, the captain's wife, home from Portugal, where she has been settling business affairs for the past year.

The captain is sixty years old, and is a veteran fisherman. He is looking forward to the adventurous trip on the little schooner which would daunt many a younger man. Four years ago he and his wife crossed the water in a small two-master. The tiny vessel he will sail this time is called the Nazare. It was formerly a U. S. submarine chaser, and is 110 feet long. She has been overhauled and fitted with three masts. She will sail in early June.

BROCKTON WOMAN, ILL, COMMITS SUICIDE BY GAS

Brockton, May 17.—Despondent because of many weeks of ill health, Mrs. Hilma J. Nelson, forty-eight years old, of No. 106 Myrtle street, ended her life at her home. Her body was found dead in the pantry by Mrs. A. C. Ericcson, a neighbor. A gas jet was found open.

MRS. OREM IS GIVEN 18 MONTHS IN JAIL

Mrs. Margaret Orem, who was found guilty of the larceny, by means of false pretences, of goods to the value of $1,650 from a department store, was sentenced by Judge John F. Brown to eighteen months in the House of Correction. Mrs. Orem represented herself to be Mrs. Frank Golden of No. 13 Garrison road, Brookline, who had an account at the store, and the goods were sent to that address.

MRS. CATT DECLINES ROME ELECTION

Rome, May 17.—Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt declined re-election as head of the International Woman Suffrage Alliance. Although greeted with a tremendous ovation when she was renominated.

Mrs. Carrie Catt.

The delegates rose and cheered boisterously, waving their handkerchiefs and then renewing the rounds of handclapping. After the ovation Mrs. Catt took the platform and said:

"I simply cannot do it. At this age you need young women full of spice and energy and all that sort of thing."

WHAT Does Air-Bag Curing Do to a Tire?

Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords are cured under internal expansion on air-bags. Each cord is held straight and taut during vulcanization, giving perfect alignment, preventing creasing and avoiding the possibility of the cord fabric buckling.

Air-bag curing is a costlier process, but it adds carcass-strength and wear to the tire that increases mileage and cuts user costs.

The uniform dependability and wear of Firestone Cords, their nation-wide popularity among the more discriminating car owners, their never-waning reputation for Most Miles per Dollar—are significant facts for the tire-buyer who is still dissatisfied with the tire-service he gets.

Structural improvements, such as air-bag curing and double gum-dipping, have won thousands of new Firestone users, just as they have added thousands of miles to Firestone Cord service.

Firestone sales in six months have increased 194% over the same period one year ago!

To get your money's worth in tire service—go to your Firestone Dealer and ask for Gum-Dipped Cords and the improved Steam-Welded Tubes. This is the combination that gives

STRIKE THREAT BY 80,000 BUILDERS

New York, May 17.—A general strike of artisans' unions will tie up construction in this city June 1 unless their demands are met by the Building Trade Employers' Association, labor leaders asserted today.

It was reported 80,000 men would be involved, including 55,000 who, according to Tom Clark, president of the late Building Trades Council, have voted overwhelmingly for a strike. They demand an increase of $1 a day in the wage for all crafts, restoration of collective bargaining, re-establishment of the Trades' Council and a contract to replace the existing bonus system of increases, which average $1 a day.

Union representatives and officers of the Employers' Association have been summoned to a joint conference at the Builders' Exchange this afternoon to discuss demands of the various crafts.

Colorado, Tex.—The toll of dead from the tornado in Mitchell County Monday jumped to 23 today when Mrs. I. C. Sheffield and Juana Rios died of injuries.

Hub-Bub
STORIES OF BOSTON TOWN
By Jo Swerling

OUR NELL COMES TO THE CITY. SHE IS GREETED AT THE South Station by Sturdy Elmer, while her ma and pa beam at their honest young love. But even as they kiss, the City with its portent of evils unguessed, leers at them. The City Knows. Ah, the City Knows.

MORE AFFAIRS OF LADY BOSTON

If the director of "The Affairs of Lady Hamilton," which is now playing at the Park Theatre, had as much woe and excitement making that film as Lou Brager, director of the two-reel travesty on the parent picture, he deserves all the success that the picture is meeting.

I know now why motion picture actors get divorced so much; why directors occasionally go amuck; why leading stars take to dope for relief, and why the life of anybody in the movies seldom reaches the allotted three score and ten.

We got Nell to the city from the little farm in Chelsea, in our first installment. Honest Elmer, who had preceded her to the big town, met her at the station—the South Station, where the New Haven comes in late once in a while—with love and kisses, while Ma and Pa Green beamed approval. Ah, they little realized what was to befall their little gell.

The osculation of Elmer and Nell drew wild applause from the crowd of several thousand people who gathered around the little amateur company as they went through their stunts. Bill Spooner, star cameraman of the Hodkinson Company, had no sooner planted his camera on the top of a subway kiosk when they began to gather.

Go to Summon Mr. New Haven.

"Action!" yelled Director Brager. The word seemed to be a cue. From out of the station bounded two men dressed in the uniform of Confederate soldiers. From all appearances they were members of General Lee's army, except their hats, which gave them away. One was the assistant station master. The other was the second assistant station master.

"You can't make this fillum here," announced the first Confederate. "This here is private property."

"The folks can't get into the station to meet their trains," said the second Confederate.

"The trains won't be on time anyway," yelled a man in the crowd.

A hoarse cheer.

Mr. Brager delivered his ultimatum.

"Private property or no private property," he declared, "the script says that Our Nell comes in from the country into the Big Town. She comes in by the South Station. What the script says, goes. Call the cops. If you want a riot scene, we're game. We've got a spot for it in this picture."

The two Confederates departed to summon Mr. New Haven himself. The director and cameraman improved the shining hour. They started filming. There was one difficulty.

It developed that Walter Regan, the sensational amateur who plays the part of "Pa" Green, is rather deaf. The crowd witnessed the spectacle of Mr. Green amiably wandering about in the business of the picture, with Mr. Brager shouting himself blue in the face through his megaphone. His voice could be easily heard in M[illegible]gan. But Mr. Regan heard nothing.

Crowd Increases Every Minute.

It was necessary to hold a private conference with Mr. Regan in order to get him to understand just what was expected. The crowd increased every minute. To the harried director it seemed that most of Boston and parts of Lynn, Worcester, Springfield and Hartford were present.

The crowd, eager to view each step of the picture, pressed in about the actors. It was at this point that "Ma" Green took a hand. She forgot that the camera was grinding, forgot that she was playing a kindly old mother and begun to lecture that mob.

"Get back there, you ruffians," yelled the good woman. "Don't you see we're trying to act?"

She charged on the crowd single-handed, a grease-painted Molly Pitcher, a Joan of Arc in make-up. The crowd retreated in disorder. When "Ma" Green was through there was a wide open space.

Director Brager, who had visibly lost weight, again yelled through his camera:

"Action!"

And the play was on again, to the cheers of the crowd. "Ma" Green was again the amiable mother, lost in her art.

"The Affairs of Lady Boston" is ganna be good. It's gottaa be good!

20 GIRLS IN BAND OF THIEVES

Young Prisoner Tells Lynn Police Gang Preyed on Department Stores

The alleged operations of an organized gang of young girl thieves and shoplifters were revealed to the police of Lynn by the confession of Antoinette De Maso, eighteen years old, who was arrested after she had stolen $62.50 and a diamond brooch from a teacher's desk in Shephard Grammar School.

The gang is composed of more than a score of girls ranging in ages from thirteen to twenty, if Miss De Maso's story is to be believed.

A "captain" directed the activities and the girls were accustomed to meet nightly at the home of one of their number, where plans for the work of the coming day was discussed.

It was at one of these meetings that the plans for looting schoolrooms had been evolved, Miss De Maso, who lives at No. 66 Crescent street, Salem, declared. The ruse of rerpesenting herself to be a visitor from another school was conceived by a thirteen-year-old member, she asserted.

For the past severeal months, the girl said, the gang had confined its work largely to shoplifting. So cleverly were the plans carried out, the girl continued, that not one of the girls had ever been caught.

Seldom was a girl dispatched to do a "job" alone. Several girls would enter a store together, pass through aisles, apparently shopping, and leave the store soon after with the loot carefully concealed among them, she stated.

The Lynn police are inclined to believe the girl's story and regard it as the solution of the large number of thefts in department stores

OPEN NEW SHORE GARDENS MAY 26

Probably one of the chief attractions of the opening of the Summer season at Nantasket on May 26th will be the official opening of the famous McPeake's Shore Gardens.

This important entertainment rendezvous last season was known as the Villa Napoli, but the name changed recently when Frank J. McPeake, formerly manager of of Pemberton Hotel and Pemberton Inn acquired the Villa.

An excellent program has been arranged for the entertainment end of the gardens, while a new and up-to-date restaurant has been installed.

72-YEAR-OLD WIDOW FALLS FROM WINDOW

Mary Regan, a seventy-two-year-old widow, fell from a second story window of her home, No. 70 George street, Roxbury, today to the yard. She was removed to the City Hospital, suffering from contusions to her back and fractures of her left leg and hip.

INSPECTOR CONBOY BREAKS LEG IN FALL

Inspector James D. Conboy, attached to the Dudley street police station, fell down the flight of stairs leading to the cell room today, fracturing his left hip. He was treated by Dr. Hurley, the police physician, and removed to his home, No. 12 Beethoven street, Roxbury.

Smack for Earl Is Filmed

JESSICA BROWN

New York, May 17.—The young Earl of Northesk, twenty-one, eager to make friends, and easily the "life of the party" aboard the liner Olympic, arrived in New York to marry Jessica Brown, former Follies' girl.

The young Earl, coming from his ancestral castle to the land of democracy, got a touch of the democratic feeling coming over when he had to spend one night on a sofa in the smoking room of the Olympic, having been accidentally locked in.

As the Olympic docked the Earl raced nervously back and forth seeking a point of vantage to see his waiting fiancee. From a corner of the crowd on the pier a voice cried out:

"David."

Immediately upon reaching the pier he started to extend his hand in a purely English greeting, but the young lady would have none of these conventionalities and proceeded to give him, not only a complete hug, but also a most complete kiss. Motion picture men who "took" the scene, said approximately seven and a half feet of film was used.

The Earl flushed.

ROBBERS' BAND IS BROKEN UP BY POLICE

A gang of dry goods robbers whose activities has cost downtown merchants approximately $150,000 has been broken up with the confessions of four of its members who are under arrest.

Herbert Cravatta, wrohelsale millinery merchant, and alleged to be the "brains" of the gang by the police, changed his plea of not guilty to guilty on a charge of one of the burglaries, after a jury to hear evidence on the case had been drawn in the Superior Criminal Court.

Nathan Friedman, who was indicted on the same charge with Cravatta, likewise changed his plea.

Jerry Price, another of the quartet indicted, also pleaded guilty. The fourth man, Joseph Cohen, who drove the truck in which the alleged loot was transported, turned State's evidence and was not called upon to plead.

The police say that they have information which will lead soon to the arrest of other alleged members of the gang.

London—The liner Empress of France has completed a round-the-world cruise begun at New York January 22. During the voyage twenty couples became engaged. There were two deaths.

GARLAND FUND AIDS 3 NEGROES

Secrecy Veils the "Defence" Money Advanced Colored People; Reply Made to Gompers

The Boston branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People received a donation from the Garland Fund, officially known as the American Fund for Public Service.

This became known today when Roger N. Baldwin, secretary of the fund, made his report.

The money thus advanced (the sum is not specified) went for the legal defence of three negroes, whose names are not mentiond.

To date, it is made known, a total of $190,000 has been loaned or given to sixty-seven enterprises since Charles Garland established the fund representing the bulk of the estate left Garland by his father. The younger Garland astonished the country by his declaration that he would not make use of the money because he had not earned it.

GOMPERS RAPPED FUND.

Recently, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, attacked the fund as revolutionary. In a statement Mr. Baldwin said:

"Taking into account the appropriations made during the first six months, sixteen enterprises directly or closely connected with the A. F. of L. got nearly $100,000 out of the total of $190,000 loaned or given to the sixty-seven enterprises.

"We call attention to this, not because the hysterical attack of Gompers needs an answer, but because we owe to many inquirers an exact statement of our relation to the labor movement."

LOANS MADE TO LABOR.

During the past three months a total of $57,000 was given or loaned. Of this sum $34,886 represents outright gifts to the following:

"Labor Age," New York, $1,000; Messenger Publishing Company, New York (labor publications) $2,000; Federated Press of Chicago (labor publications) $12,000; National Consumers' League, New York, $2,945; World War Veterans, Washington, $1,000; American Civil Liberties Union, New York, $1,000. Women's Trade Union League, $2,500; Rand School, New York, $6,500; Teachers' Union of New York, $3,000; Labor Bureau of New York, $2,100; "Who's Who in the American Labor Movement," $200.

Numerous labor organizations were represented in the $22,075 in loans made by the Fund.

"WOULDN'T HAVE IT" SAYS HENRY FORD

Poughkeepsie, May 17.—Henry Ford indicated that he did not consider himself a Presidential possibility.

Edward E. Perkins, treasurer of the New York State Democratic Committee, said to Mr. Ford:

"We have some fine places around here, Mr. Ford, and we could find you a nice home to live in when you become President."

"They wouldn't have it," Mr. Ford replied quickly.

"Who do you mean by 'they'?" he was asked.

Mr. Ford shook his head.

BUFFALO BURGLARS LOOT SEVEN STORES

Buffalo, N. Y., May 17.—Burglars early today entered seven stores in one block, wrecked one safe with nitro-glycerine and hammered open two with sledges, and escaped with loot estimated to be worth $8,000. The raid was on Main street near Lafayette square.

SHOE STRIKERS PUT IN OUTLAW CLASS

THEY REPUDIATE UNION.

STRIKERS LOSE CHARTER IN BROCKTON

Brockton, May 17.—The charter of the Dressers and Packers' Local, No. 365, in this city, was revoked by the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, the parent organization, for violation of the arbitration contract and an unsanctioned strike. A commission was instituted to take over the local's affairs.

Members of the outlawed local, 900 strong, repudiated the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, and formed a new organization, independent of any other existing organization.

Mayor Frank A. Manning, in compliance with the law, this morning officially notified the State board of conciliation and arbitration of the strike. No other steps have been taken toward mediation.

Edgemakers will meet tonight in a mass meeting to discuss their position in the general disorder which threaten. A meeting of the treers has been called for Friday night.

MAINE SELECTMAN SERVES FOR 25 YEARS

Caribou, May 18.—Fremont Small, chairman of the board of selectmen, is believed to have established a record for continuous service in such an office in Maine. He is now serving his tweny-fifth year on the board. His father was one of the first settlers of the town, coming here with his family in a cart hauled by a yoke of oxen.

DEATH OF YOUNG STUDENT A MYSTERY

South Byfield, May 17.—Arthur E. Akins, thirteen years old, an orphan, of Portland, under the guardianship of a Portland, Me., attorney, was found mysteriously dead here, with a bullet wound in his head.

Akins was a second year student at Dummer Academy. According to Acting Master Holmes, the boy had a good character, and so far as is known had had no trouble with students or other persons.

Medical Examiner R. C. Hurd, of Newburyport, declares the boy's death a mystery, and has announced he will conduct an investigation.

Akins had reported to the noon meal with the rest of his classmates, but had asked to be excused a few minutes earlier than is customary. He was not seen until some time later in a tool house by a fireman, a .38 calibre revolver laying on his breast.

The gun was identified as belonging to a Mr. Sleeper, a member of the academy faculty. Two shells in the chambers of the pistol had been exploded.

HARVARD MAN LEAVES AUTO IN SWAMPSCOTT

Cambridge police paid a visit to Randolph Hall, Harvard, today after an automobile owned by John Becker, sophomore, was found deserted in Swampscott about 4 o'clock a. m. The police woke Becker, who said he had left the car in Swampscott when he went there to visit Harold Atkinson, a friend. He refused to tell why he did not bring the car home.

TWO YOUTHS HELD FOR ROBBERY

Chase in South End Comes to an End When Cop Flashes His Gun

Patrolman Edwin N. Saunders was standing at Northampton and Tremont streets today when he saw a taxi piled high with men's furnishings.

The patrolman yelled to the driver to stop. A burst of speed was the answer. Saunders commandeered a passing auto. Down Northampton street the two autos sped. After several blocks the patrolman's car came alongside the fleeing taxi. Saunders drew his gun and the taxi stopped.

Rodney W. Sullivan, twenty-three years old, of No. 30 Forest street, Roxbury, driver of the taxi, and a companion, Myron Boucher, twenty, of No. 16 Dover street, were arrested. About $1,550 worth of shirts, underwear, collars, ties and other articles for men were found in the cab.

The stuff had been stolen, the police say, from the haberdashery store of Abe and Joseph Isenberg, No. 331 Massachusetts avenue.

LEVIATHAN WILL DOCK TOMORROW

Capt. Hartley

The Leviathan will be floated into the South Boston drydock before high water tomorrow. Her bottom will be scraped and painted and furnishings valued at more than $1,000,000, stored at the Army Base, will be put aboard.

The Leviathan left Newport Wednesday morning, passing out by Cape Henry at 11 o'clock, and Shipping Board officials here believe she will arrive off Boston Light vessel at 6 this evening.

It is possible she may be thrown open for public inspection for one day after the work is completed, which will be in about three weeks.

An African night; a moonlit beach; a big hotel; an orchestra playing the latest one-step; a girl, heartsick with the thought of what tomorrow holds for her, excusing herself from a waiting partner and fleeing to the water's edge for a moment alone.

A tall stranger, hooded and goggled; an aeroplane ready for flight; a bronze native in breech-clout standing by. "Take me with you,' says the girl. The stranger looks her over appraisingly and without a word helps her into the machine.

Whir — whiz — whir, high into the air and straight for the heart of Africa. She expects to be brought back to convention, civilization, society and her nodding chaperon. He is on his way home to the jungle, and has no thought of return.

A circle of high peaked huts; black women pounding millet; pickaninnies at play; a group of bronze men under an acacia tree, calm, stoic!

In the middle of this kraal they make their landing—the man and the girl, neither knowing the other's name—and here for nine unforgettable weeks they live.

"The He Men" starts in tomorrow's American.

I was keeping house during mother's illness. Seeing several bags of foodstuffs on the living room table one evening, I assumed my sister had left them there, and proceeded to heat up the rolls and prepare a salad from two cans of tuna fish which I found.

Later a friend came in, saying she had been sent by the nurse for a prescription and had left her bundles rather than carry them down town and back again.

I was exceedingly embarrassed when I had to explain that the contents of her packages were on the dining room table awaiting our evening meal.

Mayor Curley expressed his approval of the Zionist movement to regain Palestine for the Jews in an address at a mass meeting at the Boston Opera House.

The occasion was the arrival in Boston of Dr. Chaim Weitzman, prominent Zionist leader. The latter delivered a lengthy address outlining the hopes of the Zionists.

The theatre was filled to capacity. Moving pictures showing scenes in Palestine were flashed on the screen.

Mayor Curley said in part: "No greater opportunity for Jews of today to obtain their freedom and take their place among the free nations of the world has ever presented itself. The cycle of the centuries of suffering of the Jews has been completed."

"The final resting place for the Jewish soul agonized and terrorized for 2,000 years will be in Palestine, under a modern republic, governed by the Jewish people and free to all," declared Dr. Weitzman.

He continued his speech with a phophetic vision of what Palestine will be under Hebrew control and what can be done now.

NAMESTERS! What can you do with your name?

Can you make a funny sentence out of it? Or a wise sentence? Or a snappy one? Or a slangy one? Or any kind of a sentence?

The Boston American offers a dollar to any one who sends in a bright or unusual sentence made up of the first letters of either your FIRST, middle or LAST name.

Every one printed gets a dollar. Each week a prize of $5 will be given to the best one used that week.

Everybody in Boston takes a shot at this game. It's plenty of fun trying to figure out the different sentences you can make in this way. And if you get one printed it means a dollar, or $5 if it is the best one printed during the week.

Send as many as you like. Make up sentences from your first, middle or last name. Nobody is barred.

New England College Stars Clash in Big Meet

THRILLING CONTESTS EXPECTED

By CHARLES E. PARKER

With half a d[illegible]en of the more than twenty members of the New England Intercollegiate A. A. claiming [illegible] as possible victors [illegible] several annual track and field meeting of that association, scheduled for Tech Field, Cambridge, tomorrow afternoon and Saturday presents most spirited prospects to the many track enthusiasts who will crowd the stands and field [illegible]

[illegible]

Only Six Winners In Meet This Year

[illegible]

The most [illegible] Amherst in the high jump [illegible] of Amherst in the pole vault and but four of the six are generally favored to repeat their victories, for Cavanaugh of Boston College seem to have developed into a more capable [illegible] than Sanborn of Tech and F. Bishop of Bowdoin, who has done 12 feet 6 inches in competition, a far better pole vaulter than [illegible] of Amherst. And [illegible] Dodge of Williams [illegible] the [illegible] of Brown [illegible] in the broad jump.

Miller Favored In Century Dash

[illegible] of Williams [illegible] ten seconds for the century [illegible] generally [illegible] to win that event. Cavanaugh of B. C. is the general favorite in the mile. Clark of Amherst in the high jump. F. Bishop of Bowdoin in the pole vault. Jackson of Maine in the shotput and Tootell of Bowdoin in the hammer throw.

Rivals of almost equal ability are assembled in the remaining [illegible] events on the program, any one of whom may [illegible] his respective field when the event is completed.

Our selections as the probable winners in the latter contests are: Dodge of Williams in the furlong; [illegible] of Holy Cross in the quarter; Maloney of Boston College in the half; Hendrie of Tech, if he has recovered from his recent illness, in the two mile; Hardy of Bowdoin in the high hurdles; [illegible] of Boston College in the low hurdles; [illegible] of Brown in the broad jump; Jackson of Maine in the shot put; Jones of Brown in the discus throw; and Johnson of Wesleyan in the javelin throw.

SYNOPSIS

Two days after Kerry Rowan, a noted motion picture director, had visited the offices of the District Attorney in Los Angeles Rowan is found shot to death in his home, with a bowl of poppies scattered on the floor beside him. Rowan has given much information whereby the drug evil in Hollywood might be attacked and had promised to risk death by testifying against those caught in raids, for the sake of a clean Hollywood and because of his sincere affection for a young film star. Before this he has visited China and India where he has seen the effect of drugs on men and women both in high and low life. He becomes a movie director at Hollywood, then, and strikes the trail of the poppy again. He gathers evidence and places it in the hands of the district attorney. After a late interview with Cecily Brook, he is found murdered.

Drug Pedlars Rounded Up

"HE saw her slip out of the house and followed her to Rowan's bungalow, where he waited across the street until she came out again. He saw her wave good night to Rowan from the corner and saw Rowan go back into the house. Then, according to his account of the incident, he walked up to the corner himself and made sure that Miss Brook had reached home in safety. After that he returned to his car, which he had parked in a neighboring street, drove home and retired.

Blair saw Rowan say good-by to Miss Brook

"In the absence of present information to the contrary, it may be assumed, therefore, that Denison Blair was the last man to see Rowan alive, with the exception of the man who fired the fatal shot.

"In view of the possibility that neither he nor Miss Brook may be telling the entire truth concerning what happened when she went to Rowan's bungalow last night, the police have placed Blair under bond to appear as a material witness.

The police have instigated a thorough search for Adelbert Vaughan, a young man who served Rowan as secretary for a short time and who has dropped from sight within the past three or four days. They are seeking also for some trace of Tin Moy, Rowan's house man, who left the bungalow last night while Cecily Brook was talking to his master and who has not been seen since.

"The disappearance of Tin Moy may add another element of the dramatic to the case, by reason of Miss Brook's assertion that the Chinaman had cause for thinking his life was in danger.

"Rowan told her that a rival tong member had been on Tin Moy's trail lately, and that he feared the settling of an ancient grudge was imminent. The other Chinaman had been seen in the vicinity only yesterday morning and Tin Moy had been on his guard all day.

"Not the least sensational of the disappearances brought to light by the killing of Rowan is that of Sylvia Staley, the beauteous blond star who has appeared so often in pictures which he directed. The fact that her whereabouts is utterly unknown at present was disclosed by Matthew Crane, the young man who discovered the crime.

Crane's Story

"In response to persistent questioning on the part of the police, Crane at last admitted that he had gone to Rowan's bngalow at thaut time in the morning because he meant to demand from him an explanation for Miss Staley's nonarrival in Atlantic City, to which resort she had been sent, so he says Rowan told him, at the conclusion of her last picture.

Crane has known Miss Staley ever since he and the lovely Pasadena girl were children together and when he did not har from her, he says, he telegraphed the New York office of the company to let him know her address.

"To his astonishment he got a telegram early this morning informing him that so far as the New York office wasnware Miss Staley was not even expected in the East. He had this telegram with him, in support of his statement, and he claims that for a time this morning he waited around the studio to confront Rowan with it.

"Becoming impatient at the director's failure to appear, he to the bungalow, he says, anad there made the discovery which has shocked the entire motion picture world.

Grabbing the Credit

"It seemed to the police that jealousy may have had its part in this phase of the crime, as well as in the case of Denison Blair, and Crane was held, therefore, until the report of the medical examiner showed that Rowan must have been dead from six to ten hours before his body was found. The young man was then released on his own recognizance.

"Peter Fitch of the Fitch Films is authority for the statement that Miss Staley is merely taking the rest cure and that her desire to remain out of sight for the present has no connection with the murder mystery whatever."

The article concluded with several paragraphs of speculation as to the probable motive for the crime and a sketchy account of Rowan's life, so far as it was known.

"Pity the police couldn't have notified me of this as soon as it happened," snorted the district attorney, "instead of being so infernally anxious to hop in and grab all the credit. I could have saved them a lot of trouble."

With that he laid the paper aside and went into action. By nightfall Sigmund Berry, Pyrrha Chandler and Lo Gow were behind the bars, each occupying a separate cell and all charged with having forbidden drugs in their possession. Members of the narcotic squad made a prompt and thorough search of Pyrrha's house, Berry's apartment and Lo Gow's fantan establishment, with the resultant discovery of ample evidence upon which to hold the prisoners.

"Fine, as far as it goes," said Chase to the chief of police, "but it isn't enough. I don't know about the girl, but it's a cinch that Berry and this old Chink know who did the killing. I'll tell you what you do, just keep them apart for a day or two and don't let any one see them while you're trying to locate this man Vaughn. If you catch him, all right. If you don't you can tell Berry that you have, just the same, and give him to understand that Vaughn has squaled.

"Rowan told me that Vaughn had seen that list. Vaughn undoubtedly went straight to Berry with the tip and Berry went to Lo Gow. As the thing stands, we haven't a scrap of evidence as to who fired the shot, but if Berry thinks Vaughan has turned State's evidence he may fall into line to save his own neck. It's worth trying, anyhow."

Standing Pat

Accordinly, all efforts to trace Vaughn having proved fruitless, the chief went into Barry's cell two days later with the air of one who had completely solved the mystery and was feeling highly pleased with himself.

"You might as well come clean, young fellow," he advise the prisoner. "We've got your friend Vaughn and he's coughed up his insides."

You don't say," replied Sig ironically, but he felt the cold hand of fear clutching at his heart.

"Yep," continued the chief, cheerfully. "He says as soon as he got a flash of that list he came into town and put you wise and you framed up with Lo Gow to stop Rowan's clock for him."

"He's a liar," denied Berry, hotly, "I never framed up anything with Lo Gow or anybody else."

"But he did tip you that Rowan had the goods on you, didn't he?" demanded the chief quickly.

"I don't admit it," retorted Sig. "Let him face me and say it in court. Rowan didn't have a thing on me and neither have you. Suppose he had, what's that got to do with this other thing?"

That was the position he took, and no amount of questioning could shake him into anything approaching a confession. Pyrrha proved equally stubborn, and as for Lo Gow, he retreated behind a wall of stony silence which the most drastic of third degree methods failed to penetrate.

Tin Turns Up

The District Attorney was forced in the end to admit himself at a loss how to proceed, so far as the murder was concerned.

"Conspiracy is always the toughest thing in the world to prove," he observed: "and when Chinamen are involved in it you might as well quit. We can put all three of them away for a while on the dope peddling charge and maybe something will turn up in the meantime."

On the morning of the third day after the crime the chief of police received a telephone call from the superintendent of a downtown hospital.

FOXY GRANDPA STORY

HOW AN ELEPHANT CHANGED COLOR

WHITE elephants? Indeed, there are white elephants!

What makes them white? They're just born that way, like Albinos. You know, an Albino is a person whose skin has no color—he's all white. His hair, eyebrows and his skin are dead white. Even his eyes have no color and look pink, because the blood shines through where you have color in your eyes.

A white elephant really is an Albino. If you want to sound very grown-up and scientific, say, "An Albino has no color pigments." Pigments are little specks under the skin of our bodies which give us color.

Did I ever see a white elephant? I saw one over here years ago. It was in a circus. But better than that, I once nearly bought a white elephant.

You know in Siam many of the natives worship white elephants. They are supposed to be sacred. They take a great part in their religion. In Siamese religious processions the white elephant always has an honored place.

So I set out to find a native who could get one for me. He said he would bring one out to my house in a day or so.

So I waited, and sure enough, as I was sitting on the porch with Bobby and Bunny, in through the gateway lumbered the biggest white elephant you ever saw, and riding on his head was the native with his head all wrapped up in a turban.

I was delighted, and looked at Bunny and nodded my head to show my pleasure.

But Bunny didn't look very pleased. He put his ears back as if he was annoyed and whispered:

"That's not a white elephant."

I contradicted him impatiently:

"If that elephant isn't white, I never saw one."

"That's just the trouble. He's too white," snapped Bunny.

Just then the native jumped down off the elephant's head and came up to me, bowing and scraping.

Bunny caught my eye and called me aside, for I was just putting my hand in my pocket to get out the money to pay for my beautiful white elephant.

Bunny whispered:

"Don't pay him. Say you will keep him a few days and see how you like him."

I hardly ever go wrong when I take Bunny's advice when it comes to animals, so I told the man to come back next day for his money.

And wasn't it a good thing I did!

We left the white elephant out in the yard that night. In the early morning I was awakened by the beating of rain on my roof. I turned over and went quickly to sleep again, for I remembered that elephants love rain, and my white elephant would be all right.

But what do you think we found when we got up in the morning and went out into the yard? Our white elephant wasn't there! He had vanished!

In his place stood a regular gray elephant. I was stunned.

Bunny, Bobby and I ran up to him. And when we got close to him we could see he was all streaked with white!

That tricky native had painted him white with whitewash to fool us, and it wasn't a fast color, and my elephant had run in the night!

ETIQUETTE POINTERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When a man calls up on the telephone what should he say by way of introducing himself: "This is Smith of such a company?" Would he use the same form when speaking to women?"

R. N. W.

HE should say, "This is Mr. Smith of — Company." This form dignifies his introduction. He should use the same form when speaking to women.

Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.

NATURAL PHILOSOPHY

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"Water is practically colorless; so is ice. Then why is snow, which is water, white?

"Is there any substance, the weight of which is changed by a change of temperature? If there is I can make a perpetually running machine.—F. D. S., Coudersport, Pa."

I ANSWER your last question first, because of its appendix. Weight, which is an effect of gravitation, is proportional to mass, which is the quantity of matter in a body. Weight can be changed by removing the body to different points on the earth, but mass is not affected by changing the location of a body or by altering its temperature, although if the temperature is increased the bulk of the body is usually expanded.

This expansion would relatively increase its buoyancy and decrease its weight if the body was immersed in water, but would not affect its weight in a vacuum. There is one way, however, in which mass appears to be changeable. When a particle, such as a negative electron, moves with a speed comparable with the speed of light, its mass increases with increase of speed.

With reference to your statement that with a substance whose weight was changed by temperature you could make a "perpetually running" machine, let me tell you that this, if done, would not, as you apparently suppose it would, be a solution of the problem of "perpetual motion." To make a perpetual motion machine within the scientific definition of such a thing, you must avoid utilizing a mere natural force. Otherwise anybody can make a perpetual motion machine. A boy's water-mill would be one. The problem is to make a machine which will give out more energy than it takes in.

The whiteness of snow is due to its equal reflection of light of all kinds, i. e., of all the colors of the spectrum, which, when combined, make white. The snow is made up of small crystal particles, closely packed, and their facets being turned in all possible directions scatter the light in such a way that every color is represented in the combination.

You are mistaken in supposing water is without color. If you look through a sufficient thickness of water you will perceive that it has a distinct blue color. This is most beautifully shown when the water is in the form of transparent ice. Climbers over the glaciers of the Alps frequently come upon truly magnificent displays of the azure hue exhibited by water in frozen masses.

Today Is Lucky for Women

INCLINED TO THE OCCULT

This should be a fortunate day, for helpful planetary influences overbalance those that are thwarting, astrologers say. Venus still dominates in benefic aspect.

This is a rule by which all activities of women are held to be well directed. Professional and business ambitions should be realized while this configuration prevails.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a happy year in which affairs will be satisfactory.

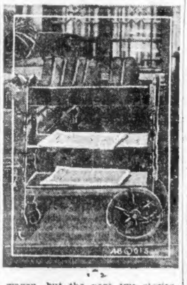
Children born on this day will be sunny of nature and perhaps a trifle too easy-going to accumulate much money in life.

You are inclined toward the mystic and the occult.

FURNITURE IN HOME

By Marian Moore

BOOK lovers, attention! Here's a contraption that enables yop to move a stack of books, some magazines, and your smoking set from one room to another, without leaving a trail of books and ashes. From the floor to the second story, it looks like a tea wagon, but the next two stories betray the fact that it was built for the comfort and convenience of the book lover.



This book wagon is of walnut, with rubber-tired wheels, and a snug little walnut handle to facilitate moving about. The book trough and the two shelves are waxed, so the piece is as attractive as useful.

THREE-MINUTE TRIPS

WHERE MEN CHEW COAL

By Temple Manning

FEW persons who carelessly toss a shovelful of coal on the fire realize the dangers braved by the coal miners. As in all callings where the element of danger plays a part, there are superstitions. But on investigation many of these superstitions have a reason.

For instance, in the great coal mines in Yorkshire, Eng., if a fatality occurs, all the miners stop work and go home.

It is supposed to be unlucky to continue work on that day, although many of the men will declare that it is simply a mark of tribute to a comrade who has gone.

To work on Good Friday is considered enough to bring bad luck. There on that day little work is done.

Yet the miners do not object to going down in the cage, which lowers them, thirteen at a time.

But these same miners do an extraordinary thing, which to the visitor would seem to [illegible] more bad luck than working on Good Friday or after an accident.

It is the habit of chewing coal. This was explained by a miner in the following way:

He said that, of course, in the mines the men cannot smoke for fear of causing an explosion or a fire, and that the constant bending causes heartburn if they chew tobacco.

Their mouths get so fearfully dry they must chew something to keep the saliva flowing, so they pick up a piece of coal and chew it for that reason.

ANSWER TO PICTURE PROBLEM

The Secret of Having Beautiful Hair

Beautiful hair—hair that is soft and silky—adds more than anything else to your attractiveness and charm.

Beautiful hair is not a matter of luck, it is simply a matter of care.

You can have beautiful hair if you shampoo it properly. Proper shampooing is what brings out all the real life and lustre, the natural wave and color, and makes it soft, fresh and luxuriant.

Your hair simply needs frequent and regular washing to keep it beautiful, but it cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soap. The free alkali, in ordinary soap, soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it. This is why leading motion picture stars and millions of women, everywhere, use Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo.

This clear, pure, and entirely greaseless product cannot possibly injure, and does not dry the scalp or make the hair brittle, no matter how often you use it.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and has the appearance of being much thicker and heavier than it really is. It leaves the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright fresh-looking and fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive and a four ounce bottle lasts for months.

THE WAYS OF A HUSBAND—By ANN LISLE

Continuing the Interesting and Intensely Human Adventures of Anne and Jim

HOW THE STORY STARTS

Jim and Anne find happiness again on a honeymoon spent in the apartment of Betty Winston, loaned for the occasion. They go to Dreamwold for a Sunday dinner with Jeanie and are met in the grounds by Rosa, who ignores Anne. Rosa advises the discharge of Mabel Storrs to save the big salary. This Anne resents. Evvy helps Anne arrange her apartments and a dinner is given as a housewarming.

By Ann Lisle

HE folded me in his arms and then turned to shout, exultantly:

"Here she is—as good as new! Here's Babbsie, so it's all right now."

Then he led me into the living room where Phoebe and Jeanie, and Jim and Pat were sitting with an effect of grimness that made me feel as if I were haled before a judge for trial. Jim and Pat got to their feet with a punctilious courtesy, quite lacking in cordiality. There wasn't a bit of welcome in the air.

All Jim did was to freeze me with a careless:

"Hello, Anne, glad you decided to come."

This was worse than any other method he could have chosen for making me feel like an alien. And Virginia harped on the same note.

"I suppose you don't realize how bad this is for Phoebe. You've given us all a fright. Phoebe was so upset she could scarcely eat."

"Oh!" I said the more tartly because I felt it wasn't justifiable: "Your worry over me didn't keep you from dinner."

"Come now, Alanna, is that the retort courteous?" Pat broke in with less of warmth than I've ever heard in his voice.

A Chilly Remark

"Well, aren't you going to tell us who was so fascinating he made you forget to come here to dinner or to telephone an explanation?" whimpered Phoebe. "You don't seem to realize how bad all this is for me."

"I must say that although I'm perfectly well and able to weather—storms," Virginia cut in icily, "I also was a trifle—annoyed. As Jim's sister, I think I may take the privilege of saying that you are—a bit cavalier in your attitude toward—family obligations."

Pauses stressed her words into an accusation. I was seeing the room through a mist of tears. Not even Neal was saying a good word for me. Suddenly I realized he'd not even remained to defend me. I wondered if anyone had an idea of the torture to which I was being subjected. Then there was a diversion. Neal came through the doorway carrying a heavily laden tray. His defection was explained. Dangling from one hand was a tray cloth which he managed deftly to drop on one of the end tables flanking the couch.

"Here's your dinner, piping hot, Babbs," he said simply. "Eat first and talk afterward. You must be starved."

Phoebe Giggles.

I looked down at the tray, because there wasn't anywhere else I dared look. On it were a generous slice of white meat of chicken, olives, crisp celery, souffle potatoes nicely browned, a stuffed tomato, a slice of lemon meringue pie and a cup of steaming, golden-brown coffee. Neal had kept things hot for me and had managed to serve them so daintily that it would have tempted a far less hungry soul than I.

Reaching out blindly, I found Neal's hand. He gave it an abrupt squeeze, and then he began talking to cover my confusion.

Don't think we took your absence lightly," he laughed. "We telephoned Carlotta, who knew nothing of you. Betty, who wasn't in, and Miss May, ditto. And of course we tried your office, which didn't answer."——

"Oh, no wonder you—thought things!" I gasped, fortified by a few bites of hot food. "My office line was out of order, so I couldn't get you. I had to stay. One of our clients came in just as I was ready to leave. There wasn't anyone else to do the work he insisted on. I had to—I just—had to!"

"Of course, dear," said Neal soothingly. "I told the bunch it was about like that. But they're all pretty fond of their Babbsie-Anne, so they insisted on worrying about her straying alone through the wilds of a great city. I'm a cold-blooded rascal, so I stayed calm."

"Now, would you mind telling me just what it was that made you feel justified in giving us a fright like this?"

A Splendid Sequel to the Famous Story of Wedded Life, "When a Girl Marries"

"A client," I stammered, not feeling that I had a right to say anything about Mr. Rockhill's business worries. "I told you—an excited client."

"You're rather close-mouthed, aren't you?" questioned Phoebe tartly.

"Why, bless your heart, dear! Do you think your sage and wise husband would have business dealings with her if she weren't?" asked Neal. "Our Babbs recommends herself by her—circumspection. Business secrets are in safe deposit with Babbs. Now what do you say we all play some wild game like acting adverbs?"

"Let's each be after showing the form our anguish took at her absence," suggested Pat, striving to do his part toward relieving the tension.

"I guess Jeanie's will be 'disgustedly!' " snapped Phoebe.

Neal Jumped Up

Neal jumped up and went over to her corner of the couch. He threw his arm around her and sent me a look of pleading. It asked for patience and tolerance. For his sake I swallowed the insult and strove for the answer that turns away wrath. But before I could make it, Neal chuckled in a tone that dared us not to join in:

"Jim must do 'frantically' to show how the man who loves her thinks his wife the original lady babe in the wood, when she doesn't come marching home at regular hours. But my sister has had the centre of the stage long enough. Now I insist that some one tell Neal what a good provider he is or mention how well my Phoebe's looking."

"I wish," muttered Jim in great irritation, "that the next time you get in a jam like this, Anne, you'll call on a good pal like Lucy to help you out, instead of hanging around your office at such hours with Tom, Dick or Harry."

"It was Mr. Rockhill," burst from me. "And I've no right to bother Ralph."

Oh, she calls my chum Ralph!" giggled Phoebe.

"Why not?" demanded Jim. "He's a bully good pal to all of us."

His tones hinted annoyance, and when we got up to leave a moment later, Neal drew me aside and said pleadingly:

"Babbs—promise me you won't be angry at my Phoebekins, no matter what she does."

There was actually terror in his tone.

"If you ask me," said Jim, morosely, as we were driving home from the family dinner at Phoebe's, for which I had been hours late, "I'll say that young Neal is a trump. You were in pretty wrong with the crowd tonight, and as far as anyone else was concerned, you could have starved and welcome."

Grateful for the facetious note underlying his complaining, I said:

"Neal's the dearest boy in the world."

"Neal's a man—every inch of him," replied Jim. "And he has his hands full with Phoebe. She can think of more reasons for whimpering. She acted as if your being late couldn't be a matter of concern to a soul but her."

I laughed and ventured to hold up a mirror to Jim.

"And the reason you're not very angry at me is twofold. First of all you wouldn't be cross with me just to—show Phoebe. And then you're sufficiently disgusted with her so you can't be with me."

Jim laughed in comfortable fashion. Then he said flatly:

A Fool of Herself

"I don't want to see you make a fool of yourself over your business any more than I like seeing Phoebe hysterical half the time. If a woman like you must have something to fill her life, guess it might as well be—a job."

While I was wondering how completely "sold" on my working Jim had become, he plunged ahead with his theme:

"Seeing the state of nerves Phoebe's in and the way Neal watches her makes me darn glad your business is enough for you. Women seem to need—fads or something in their lives."

"Oh, Jim!" I gasped. "I want you to be satisfied about my business, but don't—don't—think it—makes up for the wonderful thing coming to Phoebe and Neal."

"Now don't start a rumpus when I've been so easy-going about this evening's upset!" Jim flung back, with an edge on his voice.

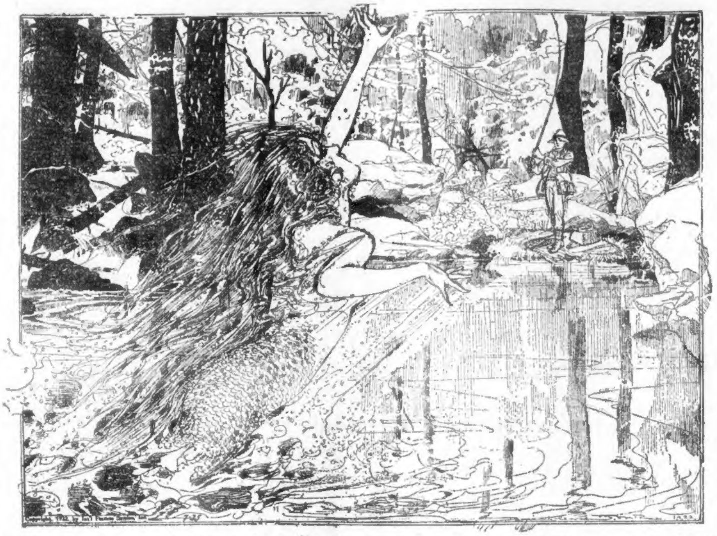
The Fisherman's Dream

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY



'WAY up in the dark romantic Catskills lies this deep pool like a dark mirror.

I have watched a fisherman I know cast for the great trout there. I have seen him, when he was far away from the pool, dream of it, and almost burst his chest with the sigh he gave to be there. And to most men the dream about this pool—the homing to it—would all have to do with trout and nothing else! But this man's love for the big sea-green of mountain water is deeper than that. The man has a soul—that answers to queer calls, an imagination that cooks up odd half-beliefs—delightful fancies.

And for him the icy, jewel-like pool in the Catskills—fed by mountain snow—is haunted. He says so, with a laugh. He is sure that at the bottom—under the shelves of the great gray rocks, whose bases lie somewhere mysteriously far below—there lives a creature—a woman of white and green—the kelpie of the pool—a laughing, slippery stranger, who watches with wide faery eyes, who sees his fly strike and never shows herself! And the fisherman wonders whimsically if, sometime, when he stands in the enchanted gold and purple air at the brink of the Blue-hole, casting for the big fellows who lie like shadows, far down—the big fellows with velvety bodies marked with rows of red port holes, like tiny liners—if some magic day, as he cast, there might be a swirl, a rush of silver and sapphire water, a boil of jewels around the thrash of a great, sparkling tail, and into the upper air, before his staring eyes would flash, instead of a trout, after his fly in sport—the white woman with the wet golden hair—the kelpie of the pool—of Burroughs' beloved Blue-hole! He wonders.

How wonderful the world would be—more wonderful for it is already a world of marvels—if only such things could happen, if only more mysteries of the things we dream—but do not find—would leap up at us in a rush of faery laughter! —NELL BRINKLEY.

A WORD TO THE WIVES

-By Viola Brothers Shore-

CUCKOO-IN-THE-BARN was an Indian chief who took to traveling around with his daughter's friends. He would Doll Up in his best String of Scalps and join the Young Folks in the Front Parlor of the Wigwam. The maidens Kidded Him Along because he was such a Scream when he began to Cut Up and Act Foolish. The young braves kidded him likewise, because he gave them his best pipes to smoke and his Firiest Water.

When his wife, Running-Eye, remarked that he was Making a mule of himself he replied: "You are full of Sour Grapes, Old Woman."

On Hallowe'en (there is no use in telling the Indian name—you couldn't pronounce it anyway) Running-Eye appeared all Dolled Up. "My gods!" cried Cuckoo, who was looking Pretty Sporty himself, "Where do you think you are going in That Rig?" to which Running-Eye replied, in a hurt voice, "To the Bonfire."

"But what is the matter with your hair? And what have you got on your lips?" "My hair is turned under to look bobbed and the stuff on my lips is a dollar sixty-five a stick."

"You look terrible!" shrieked Cuckoo—"What do you think you are—a Flapoose?" "A woman is only as old as she feels," she replied, "and I feel not quite seventeen."

"Go right inside and wipe that stuff off your lips and roll your stockings up over your knees and fix your hair so you look like a respectable Indian—not a wild New Yorker—and I will take you up to the Chief's for a game. The idea of a woman of your age trying to masquerade as a broiler—and thinking you can get away with it!"

A man is only as old as he feels. But a wife may only be as old as her husband feels she ought to be.

AN African night; a moonlit beach; a big hotel; an orchestra playing the latest one-step; a girl, heartsick with the thought of what tomorrow holds for her, excusing herself from a waiting partner and fleeing to the water's edge for a moment alone.

A tall stranger, hooded and goggled; an aeroplane ready for flight; a bronze native in breech-clout standing by. "Take me with you," says the girl. The stranger looks her over appraisingly and without a word helps her into the machine.

Whir—whiz—whir, high into the air and straight for the heart of Africa. She expects to be brought back to convention, civilization, society and her nodding chaperone. He is on his way to the jungle, and has no thought of return.

A circle of high peaked huts; black women pounding millet; pickaninnies at play; a group of bronze men under an acacia tree, calm, stoic!

In the middle of this kraal they make their landing—the man and the girl, neither knowing the other's name—and here for nine unforgettable weeks they live.

"The He Man" starts in tomorrow's American.

YOUR BEAUTY

By Maria Jeritza,

TODAY fashion decrees the silhouette with a long line from shoulder to hip. This line is classically beautiful, but the woman who would attain it will have to watch herself.

Not for her is the lazy life, riding instead of walking, lying on the sofa nibbling candy long hours at a time—not if she wishes the modish silhouette.

All the exercises I have suggested for the back, hips, and abdomen will help you to attain this straight line of the sides if you practice them whole-heartedly and persistently.

But there is a new exercise just for this purpose which you are sure to enjoy:

Stand erect with your arms extended at your sides on the level of your shoulders, your weight on the balls of your feet and your heels together. Without bending your knees or pointing your toes, lift your right foot until it touches your hand at the level of your shoulder. This exercise will give you a fine stretch, and if you are accurate and persistent will bring results.

Do not forget the quick plunge in tepid water, vigorous drying and alcohol rubdown that should follow your morning exercises.

Then, as an added reward for your hard work, you will, if you follow my example, go back to bed for a half-hour of rest before breakfast and the day's work.

How to Rid the Arms of Objectionable Hairs Use Delatone

(Aids to Beauty)

A simplified method is here given for the quick removal of hairy or fuzzy growths and rarely is more than one treatment required: Mix a stiff paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and every hair has vanished. This simple treatment cannot cause injury, but care should be exercised to get real delatone.

USE DELATONE

The Liver Is the Road to Health

If the liver is right the whole system is better off. Carter's Little Liver Pills awaken your sluggish, clogged-up liver and relieve constipation, stomach trouble, inactive bowels, loss of appetite, sick headache and dizziness. Purely vegetable. You need them.

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"Nature admits no lie."

Was Carlyle when he wrote these words in one of his political pamphlets thinking of nature fakirs?

"Wine, Woman and Song."

This convivial phrase is from a poem by the German poet, Johann Heinrich Voss (1751-1826), who wrote:

"Who does not love wine, woman and song
Remains a fool his whole life long."

"To know her was to love her."

This oft-repeated tribute to a woman's lovableness is from a poem "Jacqueline," by Samuel Rogers (1763-1855).

"Heaven's help is better than early rising."

Cervantes' Don Quixote was, it would seem, not an advocate of early rising.

"Greeks bringing gifts."

Is an expression often used of persons who are suspected of ulterior motives for doing a favor. It is from the "Aeneid" of Virgil (70-19 B. C.).

"Spick and span."

Among the many expressions used to describe neatness and order "spick and span" is one of the most frequently employed. It is found in "The Family of Love," by Middleton.

DEFY GRAY HAIR

NO matter what your age, gray hair proclaims you old. If at 30 or 40 your hair has grayed, "Brownatone" will be your greatest boon. "Brownatone" is woman's best friend in preserving the "look of youth." It has restored girlish charm to thousands. Easy to use and quickly tints gray, faded, streaked or bleached hair to any shade of brown or black. Odorless, greaseless, will not rub or wash off. Guaranteed harmless to the hair, scalp or skin. Sold at all dealers 50c and $1.50. Trial bottle mailed direct for 10c. The Kenton Pharmacal Co., 669 Coppin Bldg., Covington, Ky.

BEST RECIPES

New England housewives are requested to send in recipes for appetizing dishes. One dollar will be sent each winner printed here. Address Recipe Editor, Boston American 8, Boston, Mass.

Snow Cake

One-quarter cup butter, 1 cup sugar, ½ cup milk, 1 2-3 cups flour, 2½ teaspoons baking powder, whites of 2 eggs, ½ teaspoon vanilla. Mix dry ingredients first, then add butter and liquids. Mix in the beaten whites of eggs last. Bake forty-five minutes in a deep, narrow pan.

HELEN BAKER.
No. 72 Foster street, New Bedford.

Mother's Yorkshire Pudding

Six tablespoons flour, 1 egg, salt to taste, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 pint of milk. Make the above into a thin batter. Place in buttered dish and put under the beef till risen and set, then brown at the side of beef. Should be very light and is delicious served hot with the beef gravy.

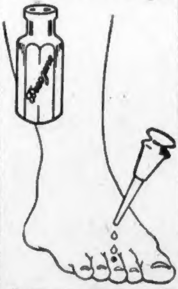
No. 63 Adams street, Quincy, Mass.

CORNS

Lift Off with Fingers



Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

WOMAN SO BLUE SHE CRIED

Because of Ill Health—Tells How She Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Burlington, Ia.—"I used to dread the time for my monthly period as it came every two weeks and lasted for two weeks, and during that time I would have the blues and cry. Since I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I am so happy I can hardly express myself. I have gained several pounds and look fine. I have recommended your medicine to my friends and you may publish my letter as a testimonial. I hope your medicine will give others the relief it did me."—Mrs. RALPH GAIL, 2021 Des Moines St., Burlington, Ia.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine for ailments common to women. It has been used for such troubles for nearly fifty years, and thousands of women have found relief as did Mrs. Gail, by taking this splendid medicine.

If you are suffering from irregularity, painful times, nervousness, headache, backache or melancholia, you should at once begin to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is excellent to strengthen the system and help to perform its functions with ease and regularity.

98 out of every 100 women are benefited by

Women of Boston, don't be led at the polls, but be convinced you are voting right.—Mrs. True Worthy White, Massachusetts League of Women Voters.

In ten years, 1910-1920, the real estate valuation of the city of Boston increased 24.76 per cent.; in 1900-1920 period, 54.69 per cent.

Foreigners Should Not Be Allowed Fire Arms

The tragedy in the killing of Maria Ferreira by her brother-in-law in the presence of a little child with as sweet a face as ever shone from the page of a newspaper ought to stir the people of this Commonwealth to some action concerning the possession of firearms and other dangerous weapons by those who are not citizens of the United States.

The absolute prohibition of firearms of any sort in the hands of any foreigner would be a wise experiment. It is also one which would not be embarrassed by the wise constitutional provision that American citizens should not be prohibited from the possession of firearms.

There were five times as many homicides in the United States last year as in Great Britain and Canada. Thus, making every allowance for the greater population of the United States, we have a comparison which is most disturbing.

Right of Revolution

American People Today Have in Their Hands Means of Peaceably Controlling Government and Social Conditions

William Z. Foster addressed a labor meeting at Scenic Temple the other night. The newspaper reports him as having said that a Red revolution was imminent in this country.

A report of the Boston Herald, our most conservative paper, which loves to hang Mr. Foster daily, says:

> Foster, who has a quick, pleasant smile and some personal charm, has a curious habit of bending forward and washing his hands in invisible water as he makes his telling points. "When they asked me whether I believed in revolution," he continued with a grin, "I answered that they did, too. And I made them admit it by asking them whether or not they subscribed to the sentiments in the Declaration of Independence. Say, do you know that the Declaration is a redhot document!" he added.
> The defence also proved conclusively that that revolution was the work of an insignificant minority, and, believe me, we never let that jury forget the way the United States got its start. We read inflammatory extracts from speeches by Washington, Jefferson and even Lincoln, until some of the jury at least seemed to think that I had the right to say the same things as old Washington and the other fellows.

Mr. Foster is technically right in what he says. Washington and Jefferson were revolutionists, and so was Lincoln, in his defence of the Declaration of Independence, which itself expounds and defends the right of revolution. But this does not prevent Mr. Foster from being absolutely wrong in the way he discusses the right of revolution and the use which he makes of the Declaration of Independence, and of the speeches and attitude of our great revolutionary forefathers.

He should not fail to remember and to instruct his audience that the Declaration of Independence recited, as a preliminary to its revolutionary provisions, that every peaceable means had been employed to obtain a righting of the wrongs and a redress of the grievances of the American colonies, and that these efforts had only met with scorn and contumely by our British oppressors, and that revolution was the last resort.

He should explain to his audience that we did not have the right of ballot; that we had no political machinery by which our will could be expressed or done; that we had neither practical, actual nor theoretical rights, except the right of revolution.

But the American people have today, in their hands, the means, both theoretical and actual, of establishing their rights. At least, they have the potential means, actual and theoretical, of asserting their rights.

It is not the absence of legal rights which troubles Americans today and which gives the highly organized minority their vicious control of our government, and of our economic, social and political condition.

It is the ignorance and lassitude of the majority which enables this aggressive, vigilant, active minority to ride them. There is nothing in the political system of the United States which will prevent a determined, awakened, intelligent majority from having its way.

There are certain brakes on the progress of the majority toward absolute domination. Some of these brakes are wise brakes and some are unwise and wrong. To permit one man on the Supreme Court of the United States, a man of very ordinary ability and perhaps of no political experience, a mere favorite of some powerful politician, to nullify an act of Congress, is a stupid, dangerous and wrongful brake on American progress and is insulting to the people. But there are a great many other brakes which merely operate to give us time for deliberate judgment. These would not act to prevent a necessary revolution. Indeed, their effect would be to make a necessary revolution succeed, because they would not permit an abortive revolution.

The majority of the American people have in their hands absolute control of their own destinies.

The business of Mr. Foster and others, who think they see much farther ahead than the majority, is to convince that majority and to stir them into action within the Constitution. It is not necessary to go outside the Constitution to accomplish everything Mr. Foster believes is right.

If he and others cannot bring the majority to see conditions from his point of view, then a revolution to accomplish Mr. Foster's point of view would not be the kind of revolution contemplated by the Declaration of Independence, and by the attitude and principles of the fathers. It would be an attempt to defy the will of the majority in the interests of the minority opinions.

WOMAN AS A BANDIT MENACE

ATLANTA, Ga., May 17.—Atlanta officers had a new quirk in holdup methods to engage their attention when a woman bandit, working with the deftness and bravado of an old hand, prowled through the fashionable Ponce de Leon avenue neighborhood, leaving several victims in her wake. She worked with a male companion, but he was only her understudy. She was the leader.

She wore khaki clothes and for concealment pulled a soft hat well down over her eyes.

One couple was robbed of purse, rings and silver card and cigarette cases.

THE VOICE OF NEW ENGLAND

Color Discrimination

Editor Boston American:

The statement appearing in your columns by the Rev. J. J. Ross, pastor of Ruggles Street Baptist Church, following closely upon the recently reported color discrimination is several Protestant churches of this city, prompts me to ask the courtesy of your paper in which to express my amazement and utter contempt for those who, in so-called Christian churches, while hypocritically preaching the fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man and singing psalms for heathens in foreign lands, are here making a mockery of Christianity as typified by the Saviour on the cross. He died that all men might live.

Rev. Ross apparently considers his mission to save white men only. He says: "Eighteen thousand of the 20,000 people in this vicinity are of the African race." Well, what of it? Here seems a splendid opportunity for him to demonstrate the boasted superiority of race.

It would be well for Rev. Ross and others who have recently come to Boston to read the inscriptions on the marble tablet in Tremont Temple in memory of Timothy Gilbert. In the days of slavery this good deacon with a band of colored and white Christians laid the foundation for that great church asd consecrated it as a place where all races should be free to unite in the worship of God.

Please send me the address of Mary G. and also Mrs. L. R. H., as I have some shoes, dresses and other things they are in need of.

M. S. A.

ED. NOTE — Their addresses will be sent you. Thank you.

Hats and Collars

Editor Helping Hand:

I have sixteen new collars, size 14½, and also some slightly worn crepe de chine collars. I have three soft felt hats, size 7¼, for some working man, and a slightly worn shirt and also a blue serge cape, size 38. K. S.

ED. NOTE—These things will be very useful, and will be held for replies. Thank you.

Needs Baby Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

I have sent clothing to both Mrs. D. and to Mrs. P., whose addresses you sent me about two weeks ago. If any kind reader has any infant's clothing or clothes for a girl about four, I think Mrs. P. could use them, as she is in great need.

MISS E. M.

ED. NOTE—Many thanks for all you are doing. Mrs. P. will, I think, receive other aid.

NO WONDER DOCTORS SAY THE WORLD'S GOING MAD

By Herbert Kaufman

HARE-BRAINED motorists will do well lastingly to remember the Long Island railroad train, with engineer dead at his throttle, which ran past grade crossings at a mile a minute without whistling its approach.

The fireman noticed nothing wrong. But, fortunately for passengers and possibilities, a quick-witted conductor was aboard; otherwise, far more calamitous happenings than the holocaust at Hot Springs or the tornado in Texas might easily have resulted.

At this writing only vague details of the Arkansas disaster are available. Consequently, families of each guest at that resort hope against hope that fire and flood have spared their own kin.

Thus, suspense and mystery add to the horror of the situation. So, too, wives and mothers lived in torturing dread throughout the great war.

If psychiatrists are correct in their deduction and a wave of insanity is sweeping the world, the anguishing events of recent years are most to blame.

One marvels how few minds broke under the hardest strain by which faith and courage were ever tested. War's heaviest toll is collected at the fireside, not on battlefields.

Johns Hopkins University is stressing the study of nervous diseases. The future promises to need every possible graduate of such departments. These are very cruel and uncertain times.

Flies in Aviation's Ointment

Just suppose an airplane had been passing through when the big wind hit Texas? Not long ago such visitations were so customary thereabouts that prairie farmers would no more think of building a house without a cyclone cellar than they would now omit a garage.

Settlement of Indian Territory and Oklahoma's subsequent substitution of moisture-collecting crops for the heat-storing Buffalo grass, which once covered the whole "strip," soon did away with "twisters." Otherwise, aviation would have a big territorial fly in its ointment.

Cables announce the wreck and burning of another London-Paris plane. Four passengers are literally carbonized before they strike ground. When things do go wrong upstairs life isn't worth a little hurrah in Hades.

The One Irresistible Weapon

If only accident and sudden wrath could pick their victims with a more discriminating eye!

But even a self-respecting cyclone wouldn't touch the New York man who just lured an eight-year-old girl from New Jersey with the traditional bag of sweets. Let's hope that psychiatrists will teach us how to deal with his sort. Meanwhile, Florida convict camps can serve profit and humanity by taking them off our hands.

Whipping bosses may go the limit with all these folk they find, and no one will raise a protesting hand.

You'll note that the lash has been wiped from Florida's statute books.

Pressure of public opinion is society's one irresistible force.

America needs no other weapon against wrong and maladministration.

When a hundred and ten millions of us understand that voters will redress more outrages.

"Eventually—If Not Now"

One particular outrage seems indefinitely fated to go unpunished.

William J. Burns declares that the government shall never halt investigation until the facts in the Wall Street bomb explosion are revealed.

However, every suspect thus far has demonstrated innocence or proved cleverer than his cross-examiners.

Eventually the truth will out. Consciences abidingly haunted by that crime must finally scream for relief. If not, some jealous woman's vengeance will tattle the tale.

"Lady friends" provide occupants for half the prison cells. The first move of your Sherlcok Holmes is to "cherchez la femme."

Baked Footprints of Time

Patience locates everything. British archaeologists find the Methuselah of towers at Kush, where kings were first known to rule. The National Geographic Society advises us to prepare for amazing disclosures there. Time was kind enough to leave footprints on baked clay tablets instead of shifting sands, when passing through early Mesopotamia.

One after another the missing bridges of history are restored.

After four thousand years we begin to read records antedating and establishing the deriviation of biblical writings. Hebrew scribes liberally helped themselves to the legends and chronicles of neighboring folk.

Modern culture and systems of justice are in many respects inferior to the civilizations that flourished forty centuries ago.

Ours is not the first race to serve high purpose and bold imagination.

All pride has stumbled. All might perishes. Therefore, it is well to search the pits in which grandeur lies molding. Babylon, too, thought to last forever.

The Test of Competence

Tragedy needs no big stage. Four little corpses are taken from the ruins of a Michigan farmhouse fire. A twenty-three-word dispatch tells all that's necessary to learn. A sentence is sometimes paint for a whole picture.

One great British general announced the success of a punitive expedition with "peccavi," which is Latin and means "I have sinned." Sind was the name of the town captured.

Caesar's laconic "veni, vidi, vici" covered a continental march. When you really know what you're talking about, the fewest phrases suffice for telling.

History can be written on telegraph blanks—and often is. The test of competence is brevity—both in speech and action.
